ANTI-KU KLUX BILL SOON TO BECOME A LAW

Passes House by Large Majority; Governor Expected To Sign Bill Soon

HAS THE EMERGENCY

Several Representatives Express Themselves on Klan In Passing Bill

The anti-mask, or so-called anti-Ku Klux Klan bill, will be written into law.

The bill, senate bill No. 14, passed the house of representatives yesterday by a vote of 92 to 13, with three absent.

It is well understood that Governor R. A. Nestos favors the bill, and is expected to get it for signature within two or three days. The bill carries an emergency clause which will make it a law upon signature by the chief executive.

The bill provides that "any person or persons over the age of 18 years who appears outside of any building in the state of North Dakota wearing a mask, regalia, or other head-covering so worn as to conceal the features and prevent recognition of said persons or persons, is guilty of a misdemeanor." The penalty for violation is a fine of $25 to $100, 10 to 30 days in jail, or both.

Of the 127 house members who voted against the passage of the bill 16 were Nonpartisans and two Independents. The league members who voted "no" were Anderson of Divide, Anderson of Sargent, Bratsberg, Cart, Mrs. Craig, Fegdes, Haugland, Hempel, Jones, Levin, Oberg, Quinn, Shurt, Swett, and Vogel.

The Independents opposing the measure were Reps. "D" of Sargent, and Kent of Dekey. Three members of the house were absent.

Rep. Dell Patterson of Renville county spoke against the bill from the floor of the house but voted "aye" on the roll call.

"Dad" Walker of Mercer, Nonpartisan, opened the debate on the measure following its third reading this afternoon.

"I believe this is a time when every real man must stand up and be counted," he said, "and I intend to vote for Senate Bill 14. I realize that it cannot prevent crime. I question the wisdom of its introduction for I know that the Ku Klux Klan is apt to thrive on legislation directed against it."

"However the bill is before us, and I intend to take this opportunity to register my protest against cowardly methods of dealing with crime. I believe the Ku Klux Klan to be an unusual, unusual, unChristian, and unAmerican."

Dell Patterson of Renville immediately took the floor against the bill. "If this bill passes it will let down the bars to attacks on many innocent people," he said. Under this bill if a farmer covers his face with a straw in cold weather, he might be arrested, and here are people who are just small enough to arrest him."

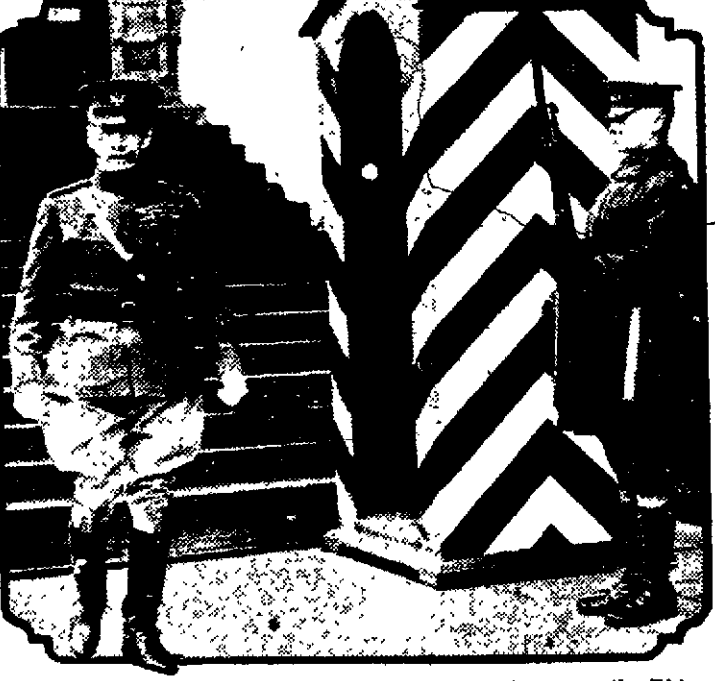

Rep. Patterson declared that the occasion for the Klan in the south and elsewhere was in his opinion the failure of officials to enforce the law.

Rep. Cart also took up the cudgels against the bill which he declared was an attempt to stir up religious strife, and thus take the minds of the people off their more serious economic wrongs.

Refuses to Bow
It remained for Rep. Sathre of Griggs county to sum up the case for the passage of the measure. "I believe it is time for every American to show where he stands," he declared in ringing tones. "I for one refuse to bow the knee to this Invisible Empire. The roll call to this bill is a roll call to the Klan and it immediately became apparent that there was a landslide in favor of the measure. Several members state their reasons for favoring or opposing the bill, and asked that their remarks be recorded in the house journal."

Many of the members of the senate left their seats when it was learned that the bill was up for passage in the house, and crossed the lobby to watch the battle.

GROUNDHOG MAY SEE SHADOW, OR HE MAY NOT, BUT ANYWAY A COLD WAVE IS COMING TONIGHT

Will Be 20 to 25 Below, Says Weather Bureau—And It May Be 6 Weeks More of Cold Weather, Too

There may be six weeks more of cold weather. Or there may not. But it's going to be cold tonight and tomorrow. There's no doubt about that, the weather bureau says. A cold wave is bearing down from Montana and Canada, and it will push the mercury down to 20 or 25 below tonight, it is predicted.

But the question of whether or not there's to be six weeks more weather rests with the groundhog. And whether the groundhog ventured out of his hole today is a matter of conjecture. No one has volunteered to hunt him out.

He didn't see his shadow this morning, and that was cheering news to those who don't want six weeks more of cold weather. But even early today the weather bureau said the sun would be out in the afternoon and he would see his shadow. And it was out at 1 p. m. The question remains, however, as to whether the groundhog's intellect was sufficient to warn him that it was bound to be more pleasant in his cozy hole than out amid the swirling snow.

Those who believe implicitly in the groundhog's prognostication, were sure he had enough intelligence to merely stick his nose outside and then retire, and in that event he wouldn't see his shadow. Those on the other side of the controversy held that anyone who would attempt to tell what the weather in North Dakota was going to be for any six weeks would be foolish enough to get out in the worst blizzard.

Be that as it may, the citizens who struggled to work this morning with a wind of 35 miles velocity whipping snow eddies across their faces were willing to believe whatever the weather bureau might say about the next forty-eight hours. And the weather bureau says a real cold wave is coming. Already it is 20 below up in Alberta and Saskatchewan. It will be 20 below—maybe 25—tonight or tomorrow. No snow will accompany it.

Bismarck folk will have company tonight. The weather bureau report today showed it was 20 below in Calgary, 20 below in Edmonton, 12 below in Havre, Montana; 6 below in Lander, Wyoming; 4 below in Fargo; 6 below in Sheridan, Wyoming; and 6 below in Winnipeg. It was 6 above here at 7 a. m. It was 6 below at noon. And every hour in every way it was getting colder and colder.

ROAD PROGRAM FIGHT BEFORE LEGISLATURE

Clash Between Those Demanding Road Building Cease and Others Impends

PROBE BODY NAMED

Income Tax Law Confers Before Senate on Divided Report of Committee

The good roads program legislation is to be the force in the legislature today.

The North Dakota Taxpayers Association has already presented its case against road building for the next two years, and it is known two or three members have been considering the introduction of a bill abolishing the present state highway commission.

On the other hand the good roads enthusiasts are lining up behind the Baird senate bill, providing for a constitutional amendment and three bills which would put substantially the Minnesota Babcock system into effect in North Dakota.

Presentation of favorable report on at least one of the good roads program measures was halted through the introduction by Senator Eastgate, Grand Forks, of a resolution in the senate yesterday afternoon for a special committee to investigate the highway commission.

The committee named by Lt. Gov. Frank Hyland, composed of Senators Eastgate, Robert Byrne, McKenzie, and W. D. Lyman, La Motte, is expected to proceed immediately to its work.

The highway commission, in its report, has asserted that the entire construction and engineering costs on federal aid roads has averaged 8 percent, while the federal government allows 10 percent, and in many other states the cost runs from 10 to 15 percent. Records already are open to anyone on this subject, it is claimed.

Senator's Reason.
In discussing the reasons for his introduction of the resolution Senator Eastgate pointed out that there were now bills before the senate calling for large expenditures for road work in the state.

"We don't seem to be able to get much information as to how our money is being spent for road purposes," said Senator Eastgate, "and in justice to the people of the state and also in justice to the highway commission I think we should have this information before acting on the bills."

The resolution gives the investigating committee broad powers to subpoena employees of the highway department and other witnesses and to examine into the records of the department.

Such an examination is favored it is known by the heads of the North Dakota Taxpayers' association, who declares that the legislature should be fully satisfied that there is no extravagance in the highway department at the present time before appropriating further funds for road purposes.

Divide On Income Tax.
Outside of this action in connection with the highway commission the chief events of the afternoon session of the senate were the presentation of a divided report on Senate Bill 21 the income tax measure, and the introduction of the bill changing the state guaranty fund commission law by Senator Walter Bond, and the other majority members of the senate committee on banks and banking.

In their final form as presented both minority and majority reports of the committee on taxes and tax laws recommended the income tax law for passage. The majority report, however, recommends it for passage practically as originally drawn with the exception of a few minor amendments. The minority report contains two more amendments, one calling for greater publicity on income tax assessments, and the other raising the tax rates on incomes above $10,000 per year.

The division of the committee is along strictly party lines. The majority report was accepted by the senate but it was agreed that the minority amendments should also be printed in the senate journal and the question will be fought out on the senate floor when the bill comes up for final passage.

Kill License Bill.
The senate killed Senator Whitman's bill for the licensing of chiropractors. The chief reason for this action was a provision of the bill which would allow such chiropractors to administer local anesthetics and narcotics, and it was feared that this provision would increase the spread of the drug habit.

An amendment offered by Senator Ward of Emmons that all residents of North Dakota be required to wash their feet at least once a week in order to prevent foot trouble was voted down.

The report of the majority of the committee on elections on Senate Bill 11 which would close polling places at 7 o'clock in the evening instead of 10 o'clock as at present, was accepted.

Earth Tremors Felt at Capital.
Washington, Feb. 2.—Earth tremors described as "rather severe" were recorded today on the Georgetown university seismograph. The disturbance began at 12:19 a. m. and continued until about 2:30 a. m., reaching a maximum intensity between 12:52 and 12:57. Fatherbedor, director of the observatory, estimated the distance of 5,200 miles from Washington.

TWO AND HALF MILLION IS PUT IN FORKS MILL

Report of Industrial Commission Shows Some Work Is Still Being Carried On

BANK LOSSES HEAVY

Actual costs up to the end of 1922 of the Grand Forks Mill and Elevator project amounted to $2,493,797.13, according to the report on that project filed in the office of the secretary of state by Lewis Crawford, secretary of the industrial commission.

The largest cost listed—$1,119,725.27—is for mill, elevator, storage tanks and storage warehouse buildings. For flour mill machinery $407,443.72 was spent; and power house machinery, $271,806.34; these being some of the largest items of cost.

The power house, filter plant, machine shop service building and dust house came to $213,004.55 while elevator equipment cost $172,752.

Mr. Crawford makes the following comment: "Work on the Grand Forks mill and elevator was resumed in the spring of 1922, after a 18-month period of idleness. The work was rushed as fast as it could be done economically. The machinery, for the most part, had already been ordered and much of it fabricated and held in storage awaiting orders for shipment. The elevator and one of the mill were operated for business in the latter part of October and have been in operation since that time, barring short periods when the machinery was shut down to permit necessary changes and adjustments to be made."

"The second unit will be completed in January and the third by February 1, according to the estimates at hand. Steps have been taken to close the building contract and make settlement with the contractors, the architect and the engineers."

Bank Situation.
Mr. Crawford makes the following comment upon the report of the Bank of North Dakota:

"The Bishop-Brisson report of December 31st, 1921, covering the Bank of North Dakota showed a deficit since organization of $150,475.64. The present report shows a deficit of $278,555.84. The statement reflects no accrued interest. The item receivers certificate of profits of claim amounting to $757,189.03 has an interest accrual of $41,850.24. These sums are not reflected in the statement as none of it has been collected and some portion never will be."

No one can tell the amount of loss the bank may or may not sustain until the paper is finally liquidated. The expense of running the bank (Continued on page 3.)

LEGISLATURE ASKED TO PAVE WAY FOR ACT OF MERCY FOR YOUTHFUL CONVICT

The house of representatives had before it today a request to pave the way for an act of mercy for a boy serving a life sentence for murder because innocently, it is asserted, handed a gun to another.

The boy is Tommy McGill, 22 years old, sentenced from Minot on February 20, 1920.

His story was told on the floor of the house when Rep. Harrington's bill to amend the 1921 act prohibiting the pardon of a murderer until he has served half his life expectancy was before it.

Tendered Currency Believed To Have Been Stolen From Denver Mint

GOT IT ON PULLMAN

George Loss Explains to Authorities Movements Before Arrest in Colorado

PROMINENT CITIZEN.
Grafton, N. D., Feb. 2.—George Loss, who, according to press reports, was taken from a Denver and Rio Grande train at Glenwood Springs, Colorado, is a prominent heating and plumbing contractor and a former alderman of this city. He has been a resident of the town for 15 years.

Mr. Loss left here Sunday for California, planning to remain for the rest of the winter.

Glenwood Springs, Colo., Feb. 2.—Sheriff Murry Wilson of Eagle county last night took from a Denver and Rio Grande Western passenger train a man who gave his name as George Loss of Grafton, N. D., after he is alleged to have tendered to a dining car conductor a five dollar bill believed to have been one stolen from in front of the Denver mint on Dec. 18.

The bill Loss is alleged to have tendered for a meal on the dining car is one of the new bills No. J20857897A, according to Sheriff Wilson who declared it apparently was a new bill. Denver authorities were notified immediately after Loss was taken into custody. They declared, the bill apparently was one of those stolen. Loss told local authorities, he was on his way to California. He declared he received the bill from a Rock Island Pullman conductor Tuesday evening in change after he paid for a berth.

He left Grafton Wednesday and arrived in Denver Sunday morning. He said he received the bill from the Pullman conductor on a Rock Island train out of St. Paul, he said. He declared he spent Wednesday night seeing in Denver, leaving that night for Colorado Springs, where he said he spent the night.

Thursday, according to his story, he left Colorado Springs to resume his journey to California.

Geo. Loss of Grafton taken from a train last night after he is alleged to have tendered a conductor a bank note believed to have been stolen from Federal mint plant at Denver on Dec. 18 was released today and continued his journey westward. Little Rock, Ark., Feb. 2.—Four men convicted of murder were electrocuted at the Arkansas penitentiary early today.

The men taken to the electric chair in the following order: Kenyon Richardson, Ben Richardson, F. G. Bullen, all convicted of the murder of Ira Kulp, farmer, near Wilmot, Ark., and Will DeBord, convicted of the murder of Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Silsby in Stone county, Arkansas.

CANDO COUPLE OUT ON BONDS

Cando, N. D., Feb. 2.—Mr. and Mrs. Frank Horn, out on $5,000 bail each, pending trial for the alleged murder of the 11-month-old daughter of Miss Ophelia Reid of Cando, may be tried before Judge A. G. Burr at the term of Towner county district court scheduled to be held in Cando about March 15.

J. J. Kehoe, attorney for the defendants, yesterday was asked if he would seek a change of venue for the trial but stated that at the present time no such decision has been reached. If the Horns desire a change, however, Mr. Kehoe no doubt will apply to the court for it, it is indicated.

Bonds were furnished in behalf of the Horns by Michael Cousineau of Cando, and R. D. Gillies, cashier of the Cando National Bank.

BISMARCK BOY'S MOTHER AGAIN SEEKS U. S. AID

Mrs. Marie Hanson, Who Walked to Washington, May Again Make Trip

WANTS COMPENSATION

Mrs. Marie Hanson, former resident of Bismarck, who has walked to Washington once and traveled to army camps on horseback in behalf of her son, "Dad" the hero of the Artillery and St. Michael was in Bismarck yesterday again, coming here from Miles City, Mont. She is going from here to Eureka, S. D. and may make another trip to Washington seeking compensation.

Mrs. Hanson lived in Bismarck for a decade, until about seven years ago. Mrs. Hanson formerly was Mrs. John Anderson.

Mrs. Hanson rode through the west two years ago, from South Dakota, visiting the various army camps throughout the west, searching for her son, whom she knew had returned safely to the United States from France, and who had disappeared.

Joe was missing for nineteen months, and his brother covered almost the entire country on horseback, and at last her efforts were rewarded. A detective notified her that her son had re-enlisted in the army, this time in the cavalry and had gone to Brownsville, Texas, where his old lung trouble returned, that he had been posted as a deserter, finally arrested and sent to the military prison at Leavenworth to begin a two-year term.

Gets Pardon.
His mother, on hearing this, immediately started to Washington on foot, to ask the president to intercede and pardon her son. The pardon was granted. While on his way home, the boy was arrested for signing a postoffice order sent to a comrade, and was sentenced to serve two years in the same prison.

Again his mother, who had not seen him since he had run away to enlist at the age of 17, started about to Washington, and again the president acted in behalf of her boy, who was discharged. The boy is living in South Dakota, where he hopes to recover from lung trouble claimed to have been accentuated by being gassed in France.

Brother Killed.
While in France the only brother of Joe Anderson, Lieut. Donald Anderson was killed in action. His mother received word of this the next day after she had been notified that Joe had been gassed and wounded in the same battle.

Mrs. Anderson from Eureka, S. D. probably will go to Kansas, and from there to Washington, but this time in a glimmer. She will seek compensation for her disabled son, and declares she also will fight for the soldier bonus.

Louisville, Ky., Feb. 2.—Plans for a permanent organization of the national council of the Farmers' cooperative Organization, as agreed on by representatives of co-operative marketing organizations in Washington, Dec. 14 to 16, were to be accepted today by members of the executive committee, meeting with F. W. Bingham, chairman.

It was announced last night that plan of organization would not be made public until it had been approved by the various organizations to which it will be mailed for approval.

The executive committee of the national council consists of co-operative marketing organizations from various parts of the United States which have a membership of 810,000 and affiliated bodies having a membership of 450,000.

NO FUEL FOR GERMANY FROM RUHR SECTION

French Guard All Outlets, But Some Trains Run Blockade Successfully

STRIKERS WEAKENING

Railroad Workers Show Eagerness to Return to Their Former Positions

Duesseldorf, Feb. 2.—The blockade of the Ruhr valley from within was complete today.

Not a single ton of coal or coke from the Ruhr valley has entered Germany for 36 hours, the French authorities announced, adding that the measures they put into effect at midnight Wednesday and total effective.

The Germans showed no signs of denying the French statement as to the effectiveness, but they reported one train of 40 coal cars disregarding all signals ran the blockade at Elberfeld, near Dortmund, yesterday afternoon and escaped into interior Germany.

Guard All Lines.
The French have men guarding every line into Germany and the directors have been informed that an locomotive that attempts to escape will be fired upon. Inquiries addressed to French authorities as to why they have not resorted to the simpler way of tearing up a few hundred yards of track along the line, near Dortmund, the reply that they did not wish to interfere with any traffic at present, other than coal and coke, and desired to give the railway men full opportunity to resume work.

Would Resume Work.
As a number of fact the striking railway workers were showing a disposition today to resume their work on many of the lines in the interior of the Ruhr, French military guarding only lines around the border and the interior roads now are partially operated by Germans.

The strike at Cologne seems to be petering out. The Duesseldorf station was closed today at noon for the first time since January, but only a small proportion of the scheduled trains are running.

Food Supplies Ahead.
General Fayot, the French quartermaster general, said that the French army service supplies were operating efficiently. He said he had seven days food supply ahead while the police is assured fifty day ration of his red wine, which is as essential to the morale of the French army as food.

Tobacco dealers and manufacturers in the valley have been informed by French authorities that they must pay the tax on tobacco. Even so Duesseldorf, disregarding Berlin orders to remit direct to a capital. Should they pay the tax at Berlin such payments would be considered void and they will have to pay again in the valley.

The chief of police of Bochum was arrested January 24, will be allowed to resume publication tomorrow. The printers and other workers pleaded with General DeGoutte they were being deprived of a means of earning their living.

(By the Associated Press.)
While the grip of the Franco-Belgian industrial control of the Ruhr is being felt in unoccupied Germany to which coal and coke shipment have been completely cut off, the pinch of hunger is beginning.

The highway commission, in its report, has asserted that the entire construction and engineering costs on federal aid roads has averaged 8 percent, while the federal government allows 10 percent, and in many other states the cost runs from 10 to 15 percent. Records already are open to anyone on this subject, it is claimed.

Senator's Reason.
In discussing the reasons for his introduction of the resolution Senator Eastgate pointed out that there were now bills before the senate calling for expenditures for road work in the state.

"We don't seem to be able to get much information as to how our money is being spent for road purposes," said Senator Eastgate, "and in justice to the people of the state and also in justice to the highway commission I think we should have information before acting on the bills."

The resolution gives the investigating committee broad powers to subpoena employees of the highway department and other as witnesses and to examine into the records of the department.

Such an examination is favored it is known by the heads of the North Dakota Taxpayers association, who declares that the legislature should be fully satisfied that there is no extravagance in the highway department at the present time before appropriating further funds for road purposes.

Divide On Income Tax.
Outside of this action in connection with the highway commission the chief events of the afternoon session of the senate were the presentation of a divided report on Senate Bill 21 the income tax measure, and the introduction of the bill changing the state guaranty fund commission law by Senator Walter Bond, and the majority members of the senate committee on banks and banking.

In their final form as presented both minority and majority reports of the committee on taxes and tax laws recommended the income tax law for passage. The majority report, however, recommends it for passage "practically as originally drawn with the exception of a few minor amendments. The minority report contains two more amendments, one calling for greater publicity on income tax assessments, and the other raising the tax rates on incomes above $10,000 per year.

The division of the committee is along strictly party lines. The majority report was accepted by the senate but it was agreed that the minority amendments should also be printed in the senate journal and the question will be fought out on the senate floor when the bill comes up for final passage.

Kill License Bill.
The senate killed Senator Whitman's bill for the licensing of chiropractors. The chief reason for this action was a provision of the bill which would allow such chiropractors to administer local anesthetics and narcotics, and it was feared that this provision would increase the spread of the drug habit.

An amendment offered by Senator Ward of Emmons that all residents of North Dakota be required to wash their feet at least once a week in order to prevent foot trouble was voted down.

The report of the majority of the committee on sections on Senate Bill II which would close polling places at 7 o'clock in the evening instead of 10 o'clock as at (Continued on Page Three.)

TWO AND HALF MILLION IS PUT IN FORKS MILL

Report of Industrial Commission Shows Some Work Is Still Being Carried On

BANK LOSSES HEAVY

Actual costs up to the end of 1922 of the Grand Forks Mill and Elevator project amounted to $2,433,797.18, according to the report on that project filed in the office of the secretary of state by Lewis Crawford, secretary of the Industrial commission.

The largest cost listed—$1,119,725.27—is for mill, elevator, storage tanks, and storage warehouse buildings. For flour mill machinery $407,143.72 was spent; and power house machinery, $271,305.34; these being some of the largest items of cost.

The power house, filter plant, machine shop service building and dust house came to $213,004.55 while elevator equipment cost $172,752.

Mr. Crawford makes the following comment: "Work on the Grand Forks mill and elevator was resumed in the spring of 1922, after a 15-month period of idleness. The work was rushed as fast as it could be done economically. The machinery, for the most part, had already been ordered and much of it fabricated and held in storage awaiting orders for shipment. The elevator and one unit of the mill were opened for business in the latter part of October and have been in operation since that time, barring short periods when the machinery was shut down for settlement with the contractors, the architect and the engineers."

Bank Situation.
Mr. Crawford makes the following comment upon the report of the Bank of North Dakota:

The Bishop-Bismarck report of December 31st, 1921, covering the Bank of North Dakota showed a deficit since organization of $150,475.64. The present report shows a deficit of $273,555.84. The statement reflects no accrued interest. The item receivers certificate of proof of claim amounting to $757,109.03, has an interest accrual of $41,850.24. These sums are not reflected in the statement as none of it has been collected and some portion never will be.

No one can tell the amount of loss the bank may or may not sustain until the paper is finally liquidated. The expense of running the bank (Continued on page 3.)

4 ELECTROCUTED AT LITTLE ROCK

Little Rock, Ark., Feb. 2.—Four men convicted of murder were electrocuted at the Arkansas penitentiary early today. All faced death calmly. The men went to the electric chair in the following order: Kenyon Richardson, Ben Richardson, F. G. Bullen, all convicted of the murder of Ira Kulp, farmer, near Wilcox, Ark., and W. D. O'Brien, convicted of the murder of Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Silby in Stone county, Arkansas.

Brother Killed.
While in France the only brother of Joe Anderson, Lieut. Donald Anderson was killed in action. His mother received word of this the next day after she had been notified that Joe had been gassed and wounded in the same battle.

CANDO COUPLE OUT ON BONDS

Cando, N. D., Feb. 2.—Mr. and Mrs. Frank Horn, out on $5,000 bail each, pending trial for the alleged murder of the 11-month-old daughter of Miss Ophelia Reid of Cando, may be tried before Judge A. G. Burr at the term of Tower county district court scheduled to be held at Cando about March 15.

J. J. Kehoe, attorney for the defendants, yesterday was asked if he would seek a change of venue for the trial, but stated that at the present time no such decision has been reached. If the Horns desire a change, however, Mr. Kehoe no doubt will apply to the court for it, it is indicated.

Bonds were furnished in behalf of the Horns by Michael Cousineau of Cando, and R. D. Gillies, cashier of the Cando National Bank.

GRAFTON MAN HELD WHEN CHANGING BILL

Tendered Currency Believed To Have Been Stolen From Denver Mint

GOT IT ON PULLMAN

George Loss Explains to Authorities Movements Before Arrest in Colorado

PROMINENT CITIZEN.

Grafton, N. D., Feb. 2.—George Loss, who, according to press reports, was taken from a Denver and Rio Grande train at Glenwood Springs, Colorado, is a prominent heating and plumbing contractor and a former alderman of this city. He has been a resident of the town for 15 years.

Mr. Loss left here Sunday for California, planning to remain for the rest of the winter.

Glenwood Springs, Colo., Feb. 2.—Sheriff Murry Wilson of Eagle county last night took from a Denver and Rio Grande Western passenger train a man who gave his name as George Loss of Grafton, N. D., after he is alleged to have tendered to a dining car conductor a five dollar bill believed to have been one stolen from in front of the Denver mint on Dec. 18.

The bill Loss is alleged to have tendered for a meal on the dining car is one of the new bills No. 329857697A, according to Sheriff Wilson who declared it apparently was a new bill. Denver authorities were notified immediately after Loss was taken into custody. They declared the bill apparently was one of those stolen. Loss told local authorities he was on his way to California. He declared he received the bill from a Rock Island Pullman conductor Tuesday evening in change after he paid for a berth.

He left Grafton Wednesday and arrived in Denver Sunday morning, he said. He received the bill from the Pullman conductor on a Rock Island train out of St. Paul, he said. He declared he spent Wednesday night in Colorado Springs, where he said he spent the night.

Thursday, according to his story, he left Colorado Springs to resume his journey to California.

Geo. Loss of Grafton taken from a train last night after he is alleged to have tendered a conductor a bank note believed to have been stolen from Federal mint plant at Denver on Dec. 18 was released today and continued his journey westward. Telegrams from North Dakota verified the statements made in regard to his movements.

LEGISLATURE ASKED TO PAVE WAY FOR ACT OF MERCY FOR YOUTHFUL CONVICT

The house of representatives had before it today a request to pave the way for an act of mercy for a boy serving a life sentence for murder because innocently, it is asserted, handed a gun to another.

The boy is Tommy McGrill, 22 years old, sentenced from Minot on February 20, 1920.

His story was told on the floor of the house when Rep. Harrington's bill to amend the 1921 act prohibiting the pardon of a murderer until he has served half his life expectancy was before it.

The boy went to Minot from Iowa a few years ago to live with his elder brother, who also was a father to him, Representative Ehr of Minot said. The elder brother got into trouble. He was convicted of arson, appealed and was out on bond. He was sentenced to serve 90 days for bootlegging. He heard the sheriff was going to take him to prison. He asked Tommy to bring him a revolver so that he could bluff the sheriff, Rep. Ehr said.

BISMARCK BOY'S MOTHER AGAIN SEEKS U. S. AID

Mrs. Marie Hanson, Who Walked to Washington, May Again Make Trip

WANTS COMPENSATION

Mrs. Marie Hanson, former resident of Bismarck, who has walked to Washington once and traveled to army camps on horseback in behalf of her son, one of the heroes of the Argonne and St. Mihiel, was in Bismarck yesterday again, coming here from Miles City, Mont. She is going from here to Eureka, S. D. and may make another trip to Washington seeking compensation.

Mrs. Hanson lived in Bismarck for a decade, until about seven years ago. Mrs. Hanson formerly was Mrs. John Anderson.

Mrs. Hanson rode through the west two years ago, from South Dakota, visiting the various army camps throughout the west, searching for her son, whom she knew had returned safely to the United States from France, and who had disappeared.

Joe was missing for nineteen months, and his brother covered almost the entire country on horseback, and at last her efforts were rewarded. A detective notified her that her son had re-enlisted in the army, this time in the cavalry, and had gone to Brownsville, Texas, where his old lung trouble returned, that he had been posted as a deserter, finally arrested and sent to the military prison at Leavenworth to begin a two-year term.

Gets Pardon.
His mother, on hearing this, immediately started to Washington on foot, to ask the president to intercede and pardon her son. The pardon was granted. While on his way home, the boy was arrested for signing a postoffice order sent to a comrade, and was sentenced to serve two years in the same prison. Again his mother, who had not seen him since he had run away to enlist at the age of 17, started about Washington and again the president acted in behalf of her boy, who was discharged. The boy is living in South Dakota, where he hopes to recover from lung trouble claimed to have been aggravated by being gassed in France.

Brother Killed.
While in France the only brother of Joe Anderson, Lieut. Donald Anderson was killed in action. His mother received word of this the next day after she had been notified that Joe had been gassed and wounded in the same battle.

Mrs. Anderson from Eureka, S. D. probably will go to Kansas, and from there to Washington, but this time in a flivver. She will seek compensation for her disabled son. The soldier also will fight for the soldier bonus.

NO FUEL FOR GERMANY FROM RUHR SECTION

French Guard All Outlets, But Some Trains Run Blockade Successfully

STRIKERS WEAKENING

Railroad Workers Show Eagerness to Return to Their Former Positions

Duesseldorf, Feb. 2.—The blockade of the Ruhr valley from within was complete today.

Not a single ton of coal or coke from the Ruhr valley has entered Germany for 36 hours, the French authorities announced, adding that the measures they put into effect at midnight Wednesday and total effective.

The Germans showed no signs of denying the French statement as to the effectiveness, but they reported one train of 46 coal cars disregarding all signals ran the blockade at Hordel, near Dortmund, yesterday afternoon and escaped into interior Germany.

Guard All Lines.
The French have men guarding every line into Germany and the directors have been informed that any locomotive that attempts to escape will be fired upon. Inquiries addressed to French authorities as to why they first time not resorted to the simpler way of tearing up a few hundred yards of track along the occupied front brought the reply that they did not wish to interfere with any traffic at present other than coal and coke, and desired to give the railway men full opportunity to resume work.

Would Resume Work.
As a matter of fact the striking railway workers were showing a disposition today to resume their work on the first of the lines in the interior of the Ruhr, French military guarding only lines around the border, and the interior roads now are being partially operated by Germans.

The strike at Cologne seems to be petering out. The Duesseldorf station was open today at noon to allow a small portion of the scheduled trains are running.

Food Supplies Ahead.
General Poupot, the French quartermaster general, said that the French army service supplies were operating efficiently. He said he had seven days food supply ahead, while the police is assured fifty days ration of his red wine, which is just as essential to the morale of the French army as food.

Tobacco dealers and manufacturers in the valley have been informed by French authorities that they must pay the tax on tobacco. Essen or Duesseldorf, disregarding Berlin orders to remit direct to the capital, should they pay the tax at Berlin such payments would be considered void and they will have to pay again in the valley.

The chief of police of Bochum was arrested and expelled today.

A Duesseldorf newspaper, which was suspended January 24, will be allowed to resume publication tomorrow. The printers and other workers pleaded with General DeGoutte they were being deprived of a means of earning their living.

(By the Associated Press.)
While the grip of the Franco-Belgian industrial control of the Ruhr is being felt in unoccupied Germany to which coal and coke shipments have been completely cut off, the pinch of hunger is beginning to be felt again in the valley.

CAMPAIGN TO SELL LIGNITE IS PLANNED

Operators Meeting in Bismarck Decide Upon $10,000 Publicity Campaign

The necessity of development work on a large scale to extend the market for North Dakota lignite to Minnesota and adjoining states and to attract outside capital required for the exploitation of this state's lignite deposits was stressed at the conference of lignite operators which was brought to a close here last night. The North Dakota Lignite Coal Operators Association sponsored the meeting and decided, in view of sentiment expressed by the operators present, to raise $10,000 for development work in 1923, establish headquarters for the operation in Bismarck and to cooperate in any development work which the state may sponsor.

through its department of immigration.

Major Stanley Washburn, president of the operators' organization, told the meeting today of his effort to interest men connected with the steel industry in Minnesota to investigate the possibility of using lignite and also reviewed recent efforts made by him at Washington to acquaint President Harding, Herbert Hoover and others with the situation in North Dakota's lignite.

Major Washburn predicted a wonderful future for this state when its lignite coal deposits are properly developed and stressed the necessity of every operator supporting their organization. He pointed out that the North Dakota Lignite Coal Operators Association is not a profit-making organization but is primarily a development organization interested in having North Dakota produce several million tons of coal annually, rendering a greater service to the consumer by passing on the savings effected by quantity production and working in harmony with the miners and their organizations.

On the suggestion of an operator, Hansen Rasmussen of Fargo, former resident of Duluth, the operators named a committee to urge the establishment of a stove factory at the head of the lakes, Mr. Rasmussen, who was made chairman of the committee, expressed the opinion that such an establishment, producing stoves and furnaces properly constructed for the use of lignite, would be a direct benefit to the operators.

The advertising campaign, launched by the operators last fall but abandoned when the car shortage affected production, will be resumed with special attention being given to educational propaganda of the use of lignite, according to Jas. S. Malloy of Minot, chairman of the operators publicity committee.

COOPERATIVE LEGISLATION URGED FOR N. D.

Washington, Feb. 1.—Passage by congress of legislation designed to further cooperative selling and cooperative withholding from market of farm products alone will cure the nation's agricultural ills, Senator McCumber, Republican of North Dakota told the senate today in discussing the Lenroot-Anderson Farm Credit bill.

"You may pass thousands of agriculture credit bills," he said, "and you will only scratch the surface."

The North Dakota senator explained that the farmers needing aid most now were so deeply in debt that they would be helped little by granting of further credit. What they need are better prices for their crop which can be brought about only by cooperative selling.

Quick Relief From Your Bad Cold

Try This New Remedy at Once

Pleasant Medicated Ointment Known As Muco-Solvent Salve Now Sold By All Druggists For 25 Cents.

In answer to the many inquiries received by the Muco-Solvent Laboratory, the proprietors have now prepared a booklet explaining the formula and properties of the new salve which is being widely used in the treatment of colds. A copy of this booklet is now packed with each family size jar of the ointment.

A cold of several days standing can generally be broken in one night with the following treatment:

Take a good laxative—a dose of oil or epsom salts. Melt Muco-Solvent Salve in a spoon and inhale as above, afterward applying some in each nostril. Do this several times. Prepare for bed and then apply hot towels to chest to thoroughly open the pores keeping well covered all the time. Next rub the salve liberally all over chest and cover same with soft warm cloths (two thicknesses, flannel preferred). Go to sleep and awaken in the morning in good spirits and probably free from cold.

Children Like It.

Muco-Solvent's quick recognition is probably due to its adaptability to the treatment of children's colds. The kiddies like it because they feel better immediately and, unless suffering from a real bad cold, do not have to be put to bed.

Readers are warned, however, that colds are the forerunners of trouble. Grippe, influenza and pneumonia are the penalties of neglect. Muco-Solvent Salve nor any other one remedy will not relieve all cases. Therefore if results are not immediately satisfactory, call the doctor.

BISMARCK TRIBUNE COMPANY

INDIVIDUAL IS UNIT OF POSTAL SERVICE

History of Mail Delivery Dates Back as Far as Sixth Century Before Christ

Washington, Feb. 1.—From the use of the dromedary in biblical times to the swiftly flying mail plane of today, the history of the letter, as a written means of communication between peoples, was traced by Assistant Postmaster General W. Irving Glover in a speech recently to postmasters and postal employees in a postal conference convention at Winston-Salem, N. C.

"On the post office job," he said, "nothing can take the place of the individual. While in many great industries the human equation has been reduced to a minimum, no one has yet invented anything to take the place of a man in the delivery of letters. Today, as a hundred years ago, we are dependent on the nerve and the sense of loyalty of a human being for the punctual delivery of our mail regardless of the weather and everything else.

"The history of the postal service goes back as far as the sixth century B. C. and may be called the handmaid of civilization and, tracing it from the dispatch of messengers of the Assyrian and Roman times to the airplane service of the present day, the postal business has doubled in the last decade while the number of employees has increased only nine per cent.

"The use of postage stamps is now so common and the mailing of letters so general that it seems as if there never was a time when this practice was unknown. But the stamp itself is comparatively new, while the sending of letters is older than Solomon.

"The Book of Esther in the Bible tells of how King Ahasuerus, learning from Queen Esther that Haman had ordered the death of all the Jews, commanded Mordecai to call together the scribes and send letters to every province of the kingdom forbidding the massacre. This is the verse that describes the sending of the messengers:

"And he wrote in the King Ahasuerus' name, and sealed it with the King's ring; and sent letters by posts on horseback, and riders on mules, camels and young dromedaries."

"The Romans, too, sent their letters by mounted couriers. The courier carried the message about twenty miles when he would come to a 'post' where another messenger was stationed with a fresh horse. He, in turn, would be relieved by still another courier. Thus relay after relay the letter was sped on until at last it arrived at its destined 'post,' meaning station or stopping place, and from that word we obtain the word 'post' as found in post office, postcard and many similar words.

"In the times of Benjamin Franklin, each letter was charged for by the sheet instead of by weight, and also for the distance it was carried. Ten cents was charged for one sheet, 20 cents for two sheets, and so on, and for every fifty miles another full fee was added. Envelopes were not used in those days, the letter simply being folded up and sealed.

"And now we come to the staggering figures showing the growth of this great business. In every single hour of the 24 there are mailed 1,400,000 letters and in every day of the year 33,600,000 letters slip into the box. To carry this great volume of letters, there was sold fourteen billion postage stamps, 57 million special delivery stamps, 38 million newspaper wrappers, 62 million postage due stamps used on short paid mail matter and a billion postal cards printed and sold, and all counted, we used and sold 18 billion units during the last fiscal year. And, again, to carry this vast quantity of mail we operate a very large motor truck service, having in operation today 4,433 motor vehicles, and then in the carrying of this volume of mail by railroad it requires 21,000 railway mail clerks who cover 215,000 miles daily."

N. D. FARMERS PAY UP LOANS

Better Record in Repaying Seed Loans than Others

Grand Forks, Feb. 2.—North Dakota has made a better showing in paying federal seed loans made in 1921 and 1922 than the average payment for the northwest states.

This is established in a report just issued by N. A. Olsen of Grand Forks, in charge of the federal seed loan collection office, which shows 50.7 percent of all loans in the north west have been collected, as compared with collection of 52.6 percent of loans in North Dakota.

"The poorest showing made was in the State of Washington, where 42.9 percent of the loans have been collected. The state making the best showing in point of payments is Idaho, the percentage of payment made there being 78.1.

Mercer Well Paid Up Mercer county, in North Dakota, where $16,230 was loaned on 1921, and $3,655 was loaned in 1922, payment has been made on 81.8 percent of the total. In Golden Valley county, where $37,577.25 was loaned in 1921 and $29,783.50 was loaned in 1922, payment has been made of 30.2 percent of the total.

The total amount loaned in 1921 was $1,957,407.20, and in 1922 $1,480,106.63, or a total of $3,437,513.89 for the two years, of which there had been collected up to Jan. 20, the sum of $1,740,470.82, leaving still to be collected $1,697,043.77, or a little less than half. Most of the money collected has been taken in since July 1 of last year only a little more than $600,000 having been collected before then.

STATE FUND IS GROWING, SAYS DEPT. MANAGER

Makes Slow But Persistent Progress in Building Up Surplus

The state fire and tornado fund has made "slow but rather persistent progress" since it was established in August of 1919, according to the report by Harold Hopton, manager, recently issued.

The fund was established by the legislature of 1919 to provide for the insurance by it of all state, city, school and other public property, subject to fire and tornado for amounts not to exceed 90 percent of the value of the property.

The premium income since the beginning and up to the end of November, 1922, amounted to $260,493.35, according to the report and the net income to $338,079.83. A surplus of $260,072.13 remains.

The operating cost was $13,561.28 or 2.6 percent of the gross income. Progress has been made, says Mr. Hopton's letter of transmittal, without "adding in any way additional expense to the already overburdened taxpayers of the state."

The money which the political subdivisions have paid for the insurance protection on their property is money that they would have had to pay out any way, for their insurance, and so the surplus of more than $260,000 is a clear saving, for the taxpayers, Mr. Hopton asserts.

The introduction also points out that criticism of the law which passed could not be wholly refuted because no appropriation was made, for a reserve fund to back it up. This difficulty has been partially overcome by the reserve fund of more than $338,000—$260,000 of which is surplus—which has been built up.

The present annual interest income of the fund is $15,878.06, more than three times the annual operating expense which has not yet reached $5,000.

BIG BUSINESS IS PREDICTED ON NO. PACIFIC

St. Paul, Feb. 2.—Americans will travel extensively this year and a 20 per cent increase in passenger business over 1922 was forecast here Wednesday by A. B. Smith, passenger traffic manager of the Northern Pacific railway, on his return from the East. He was accompanied by M. M. Goodill, assistant general passenger agent and advertising director.

"The attendance at Yellowstone Park is expected to reach 120,000, and the Northern Pacific will participate largely in the haul," said Mr. Smith. "It looks like a big park year."

Preparations for increased attendance at the Lake Hotel is adding 100 rooms at a cost of $200,000, camps are being expanded and other improvements will be made.

The Northern Pacific will add an all-steel train in the summer to increase facilities for handling heavier travel.

PROPOSE SALE OF DRAKE MILL IN NEW BILL

knowledge, experience and success in business and their familiarity with the milling and elevator business. Board members shall be entitled to a per diem of $10 and necessary expenses incurred while in attendance at meetings of the board.

Providing for the appointment of a secretary of the board, who shall be auditor of the mill, the bill says: "There shall be appointed by the governor, by and with the advice and consent of the senate, an auditor who shall also act as secretary of the board, who shall not be a member of the board. He shall be the chief accounting officer of the mill and elevator association, and as such shall at all times be ready to give to the governor, the legislature, the board of managers, the officers of the mill and elevator and the public, any data pertaining to the operation of the project that he can reasonably be expected to furnish."

The section further provides he shall maintain offices at the Grand Forks mill shall be appointed for a term of three years and be paid $4,000 annually.

Power to Remove.

The governor is given power to fill any vacancies in the mill board by appointment when the senate is not in session, which appointments shall be submitted to the senate at its next session.

The governor is given power at any time to remove the auditor or any appointive member of the board for inefficiency, neglect of duty or malfeasance in office. He must give the discharged person a public hearing, but there shall be no appeal from his decision.

The board may hold regular meetings not often than 30 days apart nor more frequent than 60 days apart, but may hold special emergency meetings.

The board of managers would have powers "to make contracts, to purchase, sell and convey real estate and personal property as may be necessary to carry out the purpose of this act," to establish rules and regulations such as a private individual or corporation might make in conducting the milling business.

Mill Sold for Cash.

The bill provides that no sales of flour, feed, grain, millstuffs or other products are to be made on credit, but only for cash; that a reasonable surplus be established for the purpose of paying back to the state the money invested in the mill and it is provided that the mill shall be fully protected by "hedging on the grain market in all transactions."

railroad commission, Rep. Twichell, chairman of the state affairs committee, instead the railroad commissioners at the committee meeting had expressed themselves as being agreeable to the attorney-general making the appointment without their consent.

Rep. Twichell insisted the power and responsibility ought to lie in the hands of the attorney-general, as provided by the constitution. Rep. Walker's motion to amend was lost, 53 to 52. He then offered a motion to indefinitely postpone the bill, and it was done by a rising vote.

present was accepted on a strict party vote, the count standing 24 to 23, two Independents being absent and not voting.

Would Repeal Law.

Several bills of importance were introduced during the session. Among these was S. B. 247, introduced by Senator Eastgate of Grand Forks, which would repeal the present law requiring the union label to appear on all state printing.

Senator Kaidor of Traill county introduced a bill to change the methods of taxation on telephone companies in line with the ideas of C. C. Converse, state tax commissioner. It would result in telephone companies being taxed on the basis of their gross income instead of on their property valuation as is the case at present.

The senate passed 15 bills, several of them being routine appropriation bills of minor nature.

Pass Vagrancy Bill.

An argument developed over Senate Bill 114, Senator Atkins bill making more strict the vagrancy laws and aimed at I. W. W. Senator Baker ridiculed the law saying that it would make everyone in the state including merchants and farmers vagrants. Senator Pook of McLean county also attacked the bill, which however, passed, only three votes being registered against it.

Senator Ployner's bill specifically forbidding the manufacture or sale of the Mexican drink known as Mesquite in the state also passed.

It was necessary this afternoon to secure unanimous consent for the introduction of the bank guaranty fund commission bill as the measure carried an appropriation of $1,000 and the time to the introduction of appropriation bills has expired.

Mandan Police Chief Retired

Mandan, N. D., Feb. 2.—Frank D. O'Brien was this week retired as police chief of Mandan, as the result of charges brought against him before the city commission.

Charles Reynolds, former incumber, has been appointed chief. In a request for an investigation presented by a Mandan citizen before the commission, O'Brien was attacked for his alleged failure to arrest a Mandan youth, who with another man is alleged to have lured two young girls to a boxcar.

According to the story told the commissioners, the girl broke away and summoned help. O'Brien, it is charged, went to the boxcar, took charge of the other girl, aged about 18, but failed to arrest her companion. The youth disappeared during the night. The other young man has also vanished.

As the commission meeting was in progress O'Brien was asked to turn in his star and complied.

FEDERAL AGENTS SEEK TO LOCATE WHISKY SUPPLIES

Portals, N. D., Feb. 2.—Efforts were being made today by federal prohibition agents to locate more than 20 carloads of liquor reported en route from Kentucky distilleries to Canada, which they planned to seize. Following reports that liquor would pass through this town on the border line between North Dakota and Saskatchewan, agents from all parts of the state were sent here to prevent the shipments from crossing the line. The whisky is said to be destined to Canadian drug companies but the agents are said to have information that it may be diverted to other uses.

DISCOUNT RUMORS

Portals, N. D., Feb. 2.—So far as the officers here know no trace of the car load shipment has been found as yet and the opinion is generally expressed by the agents that there is little probability that the booze will arrive today. So line officials here today said that they had no information concerning the shipment.

NO FUEL FOR GERMANY FROM RUHR SECTION

threaten the Ruhr itself, according to German authorities.

Food supplies are getting low in many towns and consultations on the situation are in progress.

The German authorities have indicated their intention not to interfere with food shipments, but the Germans contend the detention of rolling stock at frontiers is inevitably causing much interference.

Resumption of Service

Resumption of partial train service is reported from the occupied areas. While there is nothing to show that partial settlement of the rail strike Thursday night has been effective throughout the Ruhr, strikers appear to have gone back to a large extent in the Cologne area as forecast, and on many of the interior railroad lines in the Ruhr German employees are again reported at work.

Some trains began operating in and out of Düsseldorf where the station was opened after being closed a week.

The appeal of German labor to the American congress asking American help "to save Europe and the world from inevitable disaster" is declared in Berlin messages to have been made entirely independent of German official circles.

An appeal sent by the Archbishop and Bishop of Cologne to the President Harding points to the serious condition in Central Europe and asks American assistance for obtaining a straight-forward agreement between the powers to relieve tension.

GEN. ALLEN SEEKS RELEASE

Coblenz, Feb. 2.—General Henry T. Allen, who commanded the American forces in occupied Germany recently withdrawn, has been notified by the state department to discontinue immediately his unofficial relations with the Rhineland high commission.

LEAVES FOR BERLIN.

London, Feb. 2.—Special dispatches from Dueseldorf to the London newspapers report that Dr. Greitzner, president of Rhenish province, has gone to Berlin for a consultation for a conference regarding the food situation which is causing much anxiety to the Germans in the Ruhr. Correspondents learned from official sources that food supplies are more than generally believed, and are large enough to keep the population both on nations of a sort for three weeks. In addition it is said about fifty per cent of the people have in storage enough potatoes to last them until summer.

RETURNING TO WORK

Soldier Bonus Payments

Figures given in the industrial commission report on the soldier's bonus, showed that $1,132,753.74 had been paid out for this purpose during 1922. In 1921 $863,928.40 was paid out and in 1920 $648,132.77 making a total amount paid out of $2,644,814.91.

This fund is administered by G. A. Fraser, adjutant general.

There is always an apparent credit balance in the hands of the state treasurer but its only a paper credit, according to the report which adds that money is paid out as soon as received.

Office administration expense of the bonus is $7,106.62.

The following is given as the statement of monthly payments of the department in 1922:

1950 FATALITIES IN COAL INDUSTRY

Washington, Feb. 2.—Reports received by the United States Bureau of Mines from state mine inspectors indicate that 1950 fatalities was the toll of human lives exacted in the coal industry during 1922. This is a tentative figure based on actual reports covering eleven months and an estimate for December based upon the probable output of coal for the month. The estimate represents a reduction of 23 fatalities from the total for 1921, but will not represent a lowering of the death rate, in relation to the quantity of coal produced, the accident rate will be actually higher than for the previous year, the report said.

In a summarization of the year's record, bureau statisticians point out that from the first of April to the last of August a large part of the industry was closed down on account of a miners strike; the production of fire-mined anthracite was completely stopped; and the output of soft coal was cut in half. This stoppage naturally eliminated the accidents that would have occurred had the mines been in operation. The net result, therefore, was that the five-month period of the strike showed an abnormally low number of fatal accidents, and this reduction will, of course, be reflected in the total number of fatalities for the year.

Advocates Division Of Colleges in United States

Oxford, Ohio, Feb. 2.—A division of the larger American universities into colleges made up of groups of students not exceeding 200, is being advocated by President R. M. Hughes, of Miami University here. President Hughes, nationally known as an educator, is offering his plan as a solution of the colossal problem of the cumbersome size of the American University.

In announcing his plan for a division of large universities into colleges in order to attain better educational results, Mr. Hughes said he was convinced that a plan of organization must be developed in the larger institutions that will assure the same personal acquaintance of faculty and students that exists in the small colleges if the real worth of the universities is to continue. President Hughes plan is closely modeled after the English plan at Oxford and Cambridge.

Hughes has made several extensive national university surveys for the United States government.

Dempsey Bout Now up to Kearns

New York, Feb. 2.—The chances of Jack Dempsey defending his world's heavyweight championship title this summer today apparently hinged on the decision of Jack Kearns, his manager, on an offer from Tom O'Rourke, Republic A. C. matchmaker.

O'Rourke proposed after Tex Rickard said he was out of it that Dempsey be matched against Harry Wills, negro challenger, and Joe Beckett, English challenger, and forced to stage the two bouts at the Polo Grounds, the first to be held on July 4 and the latter providing Beckett beats Georges Carpentier of France, on Labor Day. Kearns said he would answer Monday.

O'Rourke promised to pay the champion $500,000 for the two bouts.

Rickard, who has been talking about promoting a match between the champion Jack Dempsey and numerous aspirants, formally announced his withdrawal yesterday.

STATE FUND IS GROWING, SAVS DEPT. MANAGER

Makes Slow But Persistent Progress in Building Up Surplus

The state fire and tornado fund has made "slow but rather persistent progress" since it was established in August of 1919, according to the report by Harold Hopton, manager, recently issued.

The fund was established by the legislature of 1919 to provide for the insurance by it of state, city, school and other public property, subject to fire and tornado for amounts not to exceed 90 percent of the value of the property.

The premium income since the beginning and up to the end of November, 1922, has amounted to $490,493.38, according to the report and the net income to $338,079.83. A surplus of $260,072.13 remains. The operating cost was $13,561.28 or 2.6 percent of the gross income.

Progress has been made, says Mr. Hopton's letter of transmittal, without "adding in any way additional expense to the already overburdened taxpayers of the state."

The money which the political subdivisions have paid for the insurance protection on their property is money that they would have had to pay out any way, for their insurance, and so the surplus of more than $260,000 is a clear saving, for the taxpayers, Mr. Hopton asserts.

The introduction also points out that criticism of the law when passed could not be wholly refuted because no appropriation was made, for a reserve fund to back it up. This difficulty has been partially overcome by the reserve fund of more than $338,000—$260,000 of which is surplus—which has been built up.

The present annual interest income of the fund is $15,578.66 more than three times the annual operating expense which has not yet reached $5,000.

BIG BUSINESS IS PREDICTED ON N. PACIFIC

St. Paul, Feb. 2.—Americans will travel extensively this year and a 20 per cent increase in passenger business over 1922 was forecast here Wednesday by A. B. Smith, passenger traffic manager of the Northern Pacific railway, on his return from the East. He was accompanied by M. M. Goodsell, assistant general passenger agent and advertising director.

"The attendance at Yellowstone Park is expected to reach 120,000, and the Northern Pacific will participate largely in the haul," said Mr. Smith.

"It looks like a big year. In preparation for increased attendance, Lake Huron is adding 100 rooms at a cost of $200,000, camps are being expanded and other improvements will be made."

The Northern Pacific will add an all-steel train in the summer to increase facilities for handling heavier travel.

PROPOSE SALE OF DRAKE MILL IN NEW BILL

knowledge, experience and success in business and their familiarity with the milling and elevator business. Board members shall be entitled to a per diem of $10 and necessary expenses incurred while in attendance at meetings of the board.

Providing for the appointment of a secretary of the board, who shall be auditor of the mill, the bill says: "There shall be appointed by the governor, by and with the advice and consent of the senate, an auditor who shall also act as secretary of the board, but who shall not be a member of the board. He shall be the chief accounting officer of the mill and elevator association, and as such shall at all times be ready to give to the governor, the legislature, the board of managers, the officers of the mill and elevator and the public, any data pertaining to the operation of the project that he can reasonably be expected to furnish."

The action further provides he shall maintain offices at the Grand Forks mill shall be appointed for a term of three years and be paid $4,000 annually.

Power to Remove.

The governor is given power to fill any vacancies in the mill board by appointment when the senate is not in session, which appointments shall be submitted to the senate at its next session.

The governor is given power at any time to remove the auditor or any appointive member of the board for inefficiency, neglect of duty or malfeasance in office. He must give the discharged person a public hearing, but there shall be no appeal from his decision.

The board may hold regular meetings not often than 30 days apart nor more frequent than 60 days apart, but may hold special emergency meetings.

The board of managers would have powers "to make contracts, to purchase, sell and convey real estate and personal property, and may be necessary to carry out the purpose of this act," to establish rules and regulations such as a private individual or corporation might make in conducting the milling business.

Must Sell for Cash.

The bill provides that no sales of flour, feed, grain, millstuffs or other produce are to be made on credit, but only for cash, that a reasonable surplus shall be established for the purpose of paying back to the state the money invested in the mill and it is provided that the mill shall be fully protected by "hedging on the grain market in all transactions."

LOOK, LOOK!

If you're well dressed in 1923, you'll like this, clothing designers of the United States decided in convention at Cincinnati. Arrows show derby, bow tie, straight-cut vest and plated trousers. The model is Fred Kieff, Chicago designer.

The board would be directed to take steps immediately to obtain bids on the Drake flour mill, on 30 days public notice of intention to sell the mill. The Drake mill and all other mill and elevator property not connected with the Grand Forks project would be sold, but no sale could be made without approval of the governor.

All funds of the North Dakota Mill and Elevator association would be deposited in the Bank of North Dakota under requirements of the bill. The state examiner would be required to examine the mill at least twice annually.

railroad commission. Rep. Twichell, chairman of the state affairs committee, instead the railroad commissioners at the committee meeting had expressed themselves as being agreeable to the attorney-general making the appointment without their consent.

Rep. Twichell insisted the power and responsibility ought to lie in the hands of the attorney-general, as provided by the constitution. Rep. Walker's motion to amend was lost, 53 to 52. He then offered a motion to indefinitely postpone the bill, and it was done by a rising vote.

present was accepted on a strict party vote, the count standing 24 to 23, two Independents being absent and not voting.

Would Repeal Law.

Several bills of importance were introduced during the session. Among these was S. B. 247, introduced by Senator Eastgate of Grand Forks, which would repeal the present law requiring the union label to appear on all state printing.

Senator Kaldor of Traction county introduced a bill to change the methods of taxation on telephone companies in line with the ideas of C. C. converse, state tax commissioner. It could result in telephone companies being taxed on the basis of their gross income instead of on their property valuation as is the case at present.

The senate passed 15 bills, several of them being routine appropriation bills of a minor nature.

Pass Vagrancy Bill.

An argument developed over Senate Bill 114, Senator Atkins bill making more strict the vagrancy laws and aimed at I. W. W. Senator Baker ridiculed the law saying that it would make everyone in the state including merchants and farmers vagrants. Senator Peck of McLean county also attacked the bill, which however, passed, only three votes being registered against it.

Senator Poyhar's bill specifically forbidding the manufacture or sale of the Mexican drink known as Mescal in the state also passed.

It was necessary this afternoon to secure unanimous consent for the introduction of the bank guaranty fund commission bill as the measure carries an appropriation of $1,000 and the time to the introduction of appropriation bills has expired.

Mandan Police Chief Retired

Mandan, N. D., Feb. 2.—Frank D. O'Brien was this week retired as police chief of Mandan, as the result of charges brought against him before the city commission.

Charles Reynolds, former incumbent, has been appointed chief.

In a request for an investigation presented by a Mandan citizen before the commission, O'Brien was attacked for his alleged failure to arrest a Mandan youth, who with another man is alleged to have lured two young girls to a boxcar.

According to the story told the commissioners, one girl broke away and summoned help, O'Brien, it is charged, went to the boxcar, took charge of the other girl, aged about 13, but failed to arrest her companion. The youth disappeared during the night. The other young man has also vanished.

As the commission meeting was in progress O'Brien was asked to turn in his star and complied.

FEDERAL AGENTS SEEK TO LOCATE WHISKY SUPPLIES

Porter, N. D., Feb. 2.—Efforts were being made today by federal prohibition agents to locate more than 20 carloads of liquor reported en route from Kentucky distilleries to Canada, which they planned to seize. Following reports that liquor would pass through this town on the border line between North Dakota and Saskatchewan, agents from all parts of the state were sent here to prevent the shipments from crossing the line. The whisky is said to be destined to Canadian drug companies but the agents are said to have information that it may be diverted to other uses.

DISCOUNT RUMORS

Porter, N. D., Feb. 2.—So far as the officers here know no trace of the car load shipment has been found as yet and the opinion is generally expressed by the agents that there is little probability that the booze will arrive today. So far line officials here today said that they had no information concerning the shipment.

NO FUEL FOR GERMANY FROM RUHR SECTION

threaten the Ruhr itself, according to German authorities.

Food supplies are getting low in many towns and consultations on the situation are in progress in Berlin. The authorities of occupation have indicated their intention not to interfere with food shipments, but the Germans contend the detention of rolling stock at frontiers is inevitably causing much interference.

Resumption of partial train service is reported from the occupied areas. While there is nothing to show that partial settlement of the rail strike Thursday night has made effective throughout the Ruhr strikers appear to have gone back to a station in the Cologne area as forecast, and on many of the interior railroad lines in the Ruhr German employees are again reported at work.

Some trains began operating in and out of Dusseldorf where the station was opened after being closed a week.

The appeal of German labor to the American congress asking American help "to save Europe and the world from inevitable disaster" is declared in Berlin messages to have been made entirely independent of German official circles.

An appeal sent by the Archbishop and Bishop of Sweden to President Harding points to the serious condition in Central Europe and asks American assistance for obtaining a straight-forward agreement between the powers to relieve tension.

1950 FATALITIES IN COAL INDUSTRY

Washington, Feb. 2.—Reports received by the United States Bureau of Mines from state mine inspectors indicate that 1950 fatalities was the toll of human lives exacted in the coal industry during 1922. This is a tentative figure based on actual reports covering eleven months and an estimate for December based upon the probable output of coal for the month. The estimate represents a reduction of 23 fatalities from the total for 1921, but will not represent a lowering of the death rate. In relation to the quantity of coal produced, the accident rate will be actually higher than for the previous year, the report said.

In a summarization of the year's record, bureau statisticians point out that from the first of April to the end of August a large part of the industry was closed down on account of a miners strike; the production of fresh-mined anthracite was completely stopped; and the output of soft coal was cut in half. This stoppage naturally eliminated the accidents that would have occurred had the mines been in operation. The result, therefore, was that the five-month period of the strike showed an abnormally low number of fatal accidents, and this reduction will, of course, be reflected in the total number of fatalities for the year.

Advocates Division Of Colleges In United States

Oxford, Ohio, Feb. 2.—A division of the larger American universities into colleges made up of groups of students not exceeding 200, is being advocated by President R. M. Hughes, of Miami University here.

President Hughes, nationally known as an educator, is offering his plan as a solution of the colossal problem of the cumbersome size of the American University.

In announcing his plan for a division of large universities into colleges in order to attain better educational results, Mr. Hughes said he was convinced that a plan of organization must be developed in the larger institutions that will assure the same personal acquaintance of faculty and students that exists in the small colleges if the real worth of the universities is to be continued.

President Hughes' plan is closely modeled after the English plan at Oxford and Cambridge.

Hughes has made several extensive national university surveys for the United States government.

Dempsey Bout Now up to Kearns

New York, Feb. 2.—The chances of Jack Dempsey defending his world's heavyweight championship title this summer today apparently hinged on the decision of Jack Kearns, his manager, on an offer from Tom O'Rourke, Republic A. C. trainer.

O'Rourke proposed after Tex Rickard said he was out of it that Dempsey be matched against Harry Wills, negro challenger, and Joe Beckett, English challenger, and offered to stage the two bouts at the Polo Grounds, the first to be held on July 4 and the latter providing Beckett beats Georges Carpentier of France, on Labor Day. Kearns said he would answer Monday.

O'Rourke promised to pay the champion $500,000 for the two bouts.

Rickard, who has been talking about promoting a match between the champion, Jack Dempsey and numerous aspirants, formally announced his withdrawal yesterday.

RHEUMATISM

A Remarkable Home Treatment given by One Who Had It.

In the year of 1893 I was attacked by Rheumatism and suffered as only those who are so afflicted know for after three years I tried every remedy, but such relief as I obtained was only temporary. Finally I found a treatment that cured me completely and such a pitiful condition has never returned. I have given it to a number who were terribly afflicted, even bedridden, some of them seventy and eighty years old, and the results were the same as in my own case. I want every sufferer from any form of muscular and sub-acute (swelling at the joints) rheumatism, to try the great value of my improved "Home Treatment" for its remarkable healing power. Don't send a cent simply mail your name and address, and I will send it free to you unless you are perfectly satisfied to send it. Isn't that fair? Why suffer any longer, when relief is thus offered you free. Don't delay. Write today.

Here's a popular way to serve Kellogg's Bran—greatest health food!

Most every one who realizes how effective Kellogg's Bran is for the permanent relief of constipation has their own particular way of serving this wonderful cereal. Most families eat it as a cereal with milk or cream. Others sprinkle it on their favorite dishes. Every one enjoys its nut-like flavor!

If you are cooking a hot cereal try this method:—Measure out two tablespoonfuls for each member of the family. Mix it with the cereal and cook as you always cook the cereal.

Kellogg's Bran is scientifically prepared and ready to eat, but its regulatory powers are in its bran. It is not hot or cold like other cereals.

Kellogg's Bran has won the friendly recommendation of physicians because it does give prompt and permanent relief from mild or chronic constipation and because it can be eaten without forming a habit. Again, Kellogg's Bran will free you from drastic, dangerous cathartics.

When constipation conditions exist in your system or when you are threatened, do not take half-way measures. Foods with a partial bran content cannot free you! What you must have is Kellogg's Bran because it is ALL BRAN! Get the limit; get relief!

Every member of your family will delight in eating Bran raisin bread, muffins, pancakes, macaroons, etc. Recipes on every package.

Start eating Bran to-day! Get well—keep well—keep disease out of your home! First-class hotels, clubs and restaurants serve Kellogg's Bran in individual packages. All grocers.

INDIVIDUAL IS UNIT OF POSTAL SERVICE

History of Mail Delivery Dates Back as Far as Sixth Century Before Christ

Washington, Feb. 1.—From the use of the dromedary in biblical times to the swiftly flying mail plane of today, the history of the letter, as a written means of communication between peoples, was traced by Assistant Postmaster General W. Irving Glover in a speech recently to postmasters and postal employees in a postal conference convention at Winston-Salem, N. C.

"On the post office job," he said, "nothing can take the place of the individual. While in many great industries the human equation has been reduced to a minimum, no one has yet invented anything to take the place of a man in the delivery of letters. Today, as a hundred years ago, we are dependent on the nerve and the sense of loyalty of a human being for the punctual delivery of our mail regardless of the weather and everything else."

"The history of the postal service goes back as far as the sixth century B. C. and may be called the haidmaid of civilization and, tracing it from the dispatch bearer of the Assyrian and Roman times to the airplane service of the present day, the postal business has doubled in the last decade while the number of employees has increased only nine per cent."

"The use of postage stamps is now so common and the mailing of letters so general that it seems as if there never was a time when this practice was unknown. But the stamp itself is comparatively new, while the sending of letters is older than Solomon."

"The Book of Esther in the Bible tells of how King Ahasuerus, learning from Queen Esther that Haman had ordered the death of all the Jews, commanded Mordecai to call together the scribes and send letters to every province of the kingdom forbidding the massacre. This is the verse that describes the sending of the messengers:

"And he wrote in the King Ahasuerus' name, and sealed it with the King's ring, and sent letters by posts on horseback, and riders on mules, camels and young dromedaries."

"The Romans, too, sent their letters by mounted couriers. The courier carried the message about twenty miles when he would come to a 'post' where another messenger was stationed with a fresh horse. He, in turn, would be relieved by still another courier. Thus relay after relay the letter was sped on until at last it arrived at its destined 'post,' meaning station or stopping place, and from that word we obtain the word 'post' as found in post office, postcard and many similar words."

"In the times of Benjamin Franklin each letter was charged for by the sheet, instead of by weight, and for the distance it was carried. Ten cents was charged for one sheet, 20 cents for two sheets; and so on, and for every fifty miles another full fee was added. Envelopes were not used in those days, the letter simply being folded up and sealed."

"And now we come to the staggering figures showing the growth of this great business. In every single hour of the 24 there are mailed 1,400,000 letters and in every day of the 365 of the year, 33,600,000 letters slip into the box. To carry this great volume of letters, there was sold fourteen billion postage stamps, 57 million special delivery stamps, 38 million newspaper wrappers, 62 million postage due stamps used on short paid mail matter and a billion postal cards printed and sold, and all counted, we used and sold 12 billion units during the last fiscal year. And, again, to carry this vast quantity of mail we operate a very large motor truck service, having in operation today 4,433 motor vehicles, and then in the carrying of this volume of mail by railroad it requires 21,000 railway mail clerks who cover 215,000 miles daily."

"The use of postage stamps is now so common and the mailing of letters so general that it seems as if there never was a time when this practice was unknown. But the stamp itself is comparatively new, while the sending of letters is older than Solomon."

New Senate Bills.

S. B. 243, Eastgate (Ind.). Grand Forks: This measure is the first ever introduced in the North Dakota legislature having to do with bees of any kind. It is intended to have as its main purpose prevention of shipping so-called "foul broods" on honey bees into the state. The measure provides for inspection of apiaries and bee hives and swarms to be under supervision of the commissioner of agriculture and labor.

S. B. 244, Van Camp (Ind.). Trail: This is a copy of the Wisconsin law which grants a license of free passes and special privileges but which permits railroads to grant passes or free transportation to persons spending more than half their time in immigration work. The bill is intended to be of considerable help to the commissioner of immigration and certain employees of the state department of agriculture.

S. B. 245, Kaldor (Ind.). Trail: This bill would amend the present law on methods of taxing telephone companies so as to levy a tax on the gross earnings instead of on the equipment. At present phone companies are assessed upon the number of poles in a given area and apportionment of taxes paid must be made over a dozen or more counties in some instances. The author of the bill would abolish this system making a flat tax levy upon gross earnings to be paid to the state treasurer directly and not collected by subdivisions. Present costs of apportioning telephone company property is said to total $5,000. This would be reduced to minimum by the proposed law, says the author.

S. B. 246, Ettestad (N.). McHenry: Would abolish the requirement of school laws which call for the publication in newspapers of the annual school treasurers report.

S. B. 247, Eastgate (Ind.). Grand Forks: Would repeal Chapter 173, S. L. 1919, requiring the union label be placed on all printing of the state under this law all public printing of the state is confined to a list of printing shops to the exclusion of approximately 250 within the state, the great majority of which are in towns or cities where there are not enough printers to form a union.

S. B. 248, Martin (N.). Morton: Amends existing laws relating to redemption from sales of real estate under foreclosing mortgages, permitting two years in which to redeem instead of one year as at present.

S. B. 249, Sperry (Ind.). Burleigh: Repeals the mine inspection law, Chapter 168, S. L. 1919, which provides for the appointment of a mine inspector, registry of mines, etc.

S. B. 250, Bond (Ind.). Ward: Enlarging the powers and duties of the Guaranty Fund Commission.

Concurrent Resolution, Gardiner (Ind.). Nelson: Calling for the re-publication of the session laws of 1919 for which "there is a great demand by the people of our own state as well as people of neighboring states because of their peculiar importance."

House Bills Passed.

H. B. 51, Doyle: To prevent range stock from escaping taxation by providing it shall be taxed in the township of the residence of the owner. Passed, 108 to 0.

H. B. 102, Appropriations Committee: $10,000 to aid in educational work of the N. D. Anti-Tuberculosis association. Passed, 109 to 0.

H. B. 71, Jackson: Making it possible to clear titles clouded by notice of intention to file mechanics liens which are not filed by providing if such lien is not filed within six months after notice it shall be void. Passed, 108 to 2.

S. B. 64, Baird: Making aviators liable for damage caused in landings, prohibiting hunting from airplane, and preventing stunt flying over thickly populated communities. Passed, 108 to 0.

NEW HOUSE BILLS.

H. B. 73, Trubshaw (Ind.). Barnes: Amends present law requiring the union label on all public printing of the state so as to permit various institutions of the state to have printing done in establishments of the city in which they are located if there is no union chapter in such city or village. (Public printing.)

H. B. 174, Lakie (N.). Williams, and McManus (N.). Rolette: Makes it unlawful for any person to drive any closed automobile, vehicle or conveyance which is not provided with windows both in front and on both sides.

H. B. 175, Lazier (N.). McHenry: Amends Sec. 7, Chap. 56, S. L. 1921, to provide that any treasurer of a public corporation who shall deposit funds in any state or national bank in excess of the bond furnished by the depository bank shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and hold personally liable in case of loss while members of any body that passes upon the sufficiency of such a bond shall also be guilty of a misdemeanor and held jointly liable.

H. B. 176, Twitchell (Ind.). Cass: Is a measure calculated to meet all technical and legal requirements to permit counties to issue refunding bonds to take up outstanding indebtedness incurred through bonding for the purchase of seed and feed. Limits interest to 7 per cent; mature not later than five years; requires record of bonds and special levy to meet interest and principle payments.

Concurrent Resolution, Rep. O. M. Martin (N.). Golden Valley: Memorializing congress and giving approval to and urging the passage by the national house of a bill introduced by Congressman J. H. Sinclair providing adjusted compensation for veterans of the world war. The bill would have the U. S. treasurer purchase silver bullion at the market and coin same into dollars the resultant difference being used to pay off the compensation.

"CASCARETS" FOR BOWELS

When Sick, Bilious, Headachy, Constipated, for Sour Stomach, Gases, Bad Breath, Colds

Your bowels may seem regular—move every day—yet your thirty feet of bowels may be lined with poison. By morning all the constipation poison and sour bile will move out—to your blood; keeping you half sick, nervous, despondent and upset. Whether you have headache, colds, sour stomach, indigestion, or heart palpitation, it is usually from bowel poison.

Hurry! One or two Cascarets to-night will cleanse your bowels right. By morning all the constipation poison and sour bile will move out—to your blood; keeping you half sick, nervous, despondent and upset. Whether you have headache, colds, sour stomach, indigestion, or heart palpitation, it

GIVES YOU PEP

When you need stimulation, eat a few lumps of sugar—and you'll get as much "kick" as from an alcoholic cocktail. So claims a medical research man of high standing in his profession.

He adds: "Most people will laugh at that statement, but it's a chemical truth. The sugar positively will stimulate the physical body as much as the cocktail. The mental exhilaration may seem greater from a cocktail than from lump sugar, but that's chiefly the power of the imagination. The cocktail drinker gets a 'kick' because he expects it, is firmly convinced that he'll get it. Sugar doesn't seem to give this same effect—because the sugar eater doesn't expect it, hence his imagination doesn't create it."

Mental stimulation is at least 50 per cent imagination. A strong whisky highball, if you tell the drinker it is very weak, is not apt to stimulate him mentally as much as a weak one if you tell him it's half whisky, half ginger ale. Exhilaration and depression are largely states of mind.

Sugar in the stomach is like coal in the furnace. It rapidly is converted into heat and energy. That's why so many athletes, especially football players, instinctively crave for lumps of sugar before they enter a contest. Sugar "gets to them" quickly—it is transformed into energy and heat sooner than any other food.

Newsman men, as a class, are notorious candy fiends. Few of them realize it, but they crave sugar because of its stimulating power.

Many candy fiends are really "sugar drunkards." Did you ever notice that some girls who constantly munch on candy are geared up to an emotional exhilaration that resembles intoxication?

If you want to prove all this, try what doctors call the finger weight test for exhaustion. Hitch a small weight (possibly two ounces) to your forefinger. Then count how many times, with your hand parallel with the floor, you can turn the index and lower the finger and its attached weight. After a certain number of times, your finger will get exhausted and a little weight will seem to weigh a ton.

Try the same experiment again, after eating several lumps of sugar, and you'll be able to lift the little weight a fourth or a fifth more times than when you haven't stimulated yourself with sugar.

The stimulation from sugar is of longer duration than the "kick" from alcohol. Also, sugar does not have alcohol's depressive reaction.

PROFITS

One of the big Chicago mail order houses issues its financial statement, showing that it sold $160,648,152 worth of goods in 1922, and made a profit of $5,435,168.

That is doing business on a slender margin—a profit of less than four cents on a dollar.

In 1921 the company showed an operating loss of $16,400,468. It is a law of life that all human activity has its ups and downs and a constant struggle to survive. This is as true of corporations as of individuals, though most of us would prefer to be a corporation. Big trees do not escape the cyclone.

DEPENDS

Exports of American raw cotton in 1922 totaled over 673 million dollars. This was a gain of about 139 million dollars, compared with the year before.

On the other hand, only 6,113,813 bales of cotton were exported in 1922. This was a loss of 360,292 bales, compared with 1921.

So you can prove that cotton exports last year gained, then turn around and prove they slumped. Both are correct. The dollar, by reason of its fluctuating value, is deceptive as a measure of business activity.

VALENTINO

The press agents announce that Valentino, film star, will get $6000 a week in vaudeville. His wife is booked with him and their act carries its own orchestra. After paying expenses the Valentinos should be at least $5000 a week to the good.

While press agents never underestimate, you cannot help compare Valentino's income with the salary of high government officials, leading scientists and heads of gigantic enterprises. Pondering which, it occurs to us that there are things harder to understand than the Einstein theory.

PESTS

In Egypt explorers have dug into the tomb of an ancient king, unearthing treasures worth an estimated 40 million dollars. The whole affair has been thrillingly romantic, revealing that the rulers of Egypt had fabulous luxuries.

The latest finds are fly-swatters, which sort of takes the edge off the romance of being a king. Even kings (thanks be) are susceptible to the pests of life—flies, itch, dirt and monotony.

BUILDING

About six billion dollars worth of building will be completed by Americans this year, estimates Copper and Brass Research Association. Here's how it'll be divided: For each $634 for industrial buildings, $960 will be spent for apartment houses, $406 for churches, $720 for dwellings (homes), $456 for hospitals, $652 for hotels, $616 for office buildings, $252 for public buildings, $124 for public garages and $1180 for schools. The largest expenditure is for schools—and should be.

TOWNSHIP AHOY.

Gone are the days when the stranger motorist was grumped at by the townlets he traversed. The posted warning from the Selectmen that once badly threatened him is now, if it survives at all, but a pretty inscription in quaint lettering on a pleasant tavern-like sign-board of cheer. The suggestion about moderating one's speed is just a well-groomed Old English hint. Even the "Slow Down" notice heralding a school is really an invitation to pause and view the new educational building in its landscape-gardened setting.

Such hospitality. "Welcome to Quagmire, the Suburb Beautiful." "This is Sparrowhurst, the Town of Nestling Homes." "Gumfret Bids You Greeting." And all in the most refined letters of introduction.

Even before one really arrives, the hand of fellowship wields its paint brush. "You are now approaching Dunston, birthplace of Samuel T. Pretzle, inventor of Holeproof Macaroni." History is unfolded by yards and yards. "Here in East Blueberry in 1687 William Longfellow signed the treaty with Chief Whiffing Bull, granting the Whoopaloos Indians the right to move on."

But the spirit of the precious past is brought yet more pronouncedly into the present by the indefatigable Ye Olde—Ye Olde Crumble Lane, Ye Olde Giffle Shoppe, Ye Olde Tea Room, Ye Olde Bun Parlor. To say that the innocent motorist is welcomed by them is to put it blandly. He is fairly gobbled.

To a person of a different nature this extreme cordiality is disconcerting. He hardly knows how to reciprocate. And even a car has its sensibilities. Fancy a Rolls-Royce, with that polished repression which characterizes all Britishers, best by such importunate affability. Enough to make its radiator boil over!

On behalf of both car and master it would be salutary, when visiting strange townships, to carry a tall pennant with a suitable P. P. C. device; so that in departing one might respond to the "You Are Now Leaving Wunkchussett" sign by flinging back: "Thanks. We are deeply affected.—L. M. in Life."

ARE MODERNS TOO TOUCHY?

The time was—and not so long ago—when sweetheart or lover, bride or groom, had the sweet privilege of dancing on his or her partner's feet if he or she desired. Not now. Then it was one of the proof of that deathless love through which lovers from the time men began to use spoken language perjured themselves to penetrate further into the sanctity of a woman's affection. Not now. When men have been cured of the perjury habit in their amorous adventures, or whether they have just got plain fed up on the endless brand of love, is not entirely clear. But—when a groom tells his beaming bride that she almost trampled his feet off with her "original dancing," and that he is through dancing with her, what is the human-born inference? Isn't it perfectly clear that a mighty change has entered when no one was looking?

The bride cried with a broken heart and took poison. She has a fighting chance to get well. What hurt her so much was that she knew her groom is "the best dancer in Brooklyn," so she took dancing lessons for some time before her marriage in order to be a dutiful wife. And see what became of it! He up and told me she was plain hum. Could any bride only three days old stand for that?

The groom of the Victorian days would have remembered those sore feet with extra pleasure because they came from the "tootsies" of the sweetest girl in the universe. Not now. The modern young man is "touchy." Perhaps, too, the brides of today are not quite what they were in the Victorian days.—Pittsburgh Leader.

LUCK

Those who are not familiar with the terminology of poker will not realize what a shock it was to a certain Iowan to fill out a royal spade flush. But, assuming that the event was a rare and fortunate one, even the least worldly cannot believe that the death of the lucky man was a fitting climax.

Pehaps, however, it was. Luck or fate or whatever unseen power it is that mixes up trivial human affairs has no rules to guide it except the rule of the unexpected; and it does, on many an occasion, turn rejoicing into sorrow. It seems to bear grudges. Can one be sure, for instance, that the Iowan whose death came so suddenly had not been notably unlucky throughout his life? If he were, the stroke of good fortune which caused his death had a bitterly logical outcome.

There was an old peasant who lived near Carcassonne, so says an old French poem. Longing all his life to see the famous town, he was always unable to make the short trip which would free him temporarily from the narrow rut of his daily life. At last his desire was to be fulfilled. On the morrow he was surely to go to Carcassonne; but that night he died. Luck such as this is cruel; but if luck were not occasionally cruel it would not be luck.—Baltimore Sun.

Second floor of one of Germany's leading papers fell to the basement. Perhaps a reported tried to write something nice on France.

SOLITARY CONFINEMENT, FOR AT LEAST A YEAR

"We are not criminal lawyers!" the other stiffened. "My father is a paralytic, chained to his wheel chair. What can he know of any crime, especially one committed in New York?"

"Because his memory doubtless reaches back, let us say, fourteen years. Have you heard of the recent murder of the celebrated portrait painter, Mrs. Vane? Does 'Vane' suggest a substitute for that of your father's late partner, Vener?"

The young attorney gasped and seized the edge of his desk. "Heavens! You don't mean that creature who ran off with Vener's son! I was only a schoolboy at the time but I remember the scandal! Young Mrs. Vener herself died soon afterward."

It is odd under the circumstances that Matt Vener's wife's family didn't come forward and claim her body when she died insane from the mental suffering she has endured at his hands," Barry remarked.

"Her maiden name was Barrows, Irene Barrows, but I never heard that she had any living relatives; that is, none of them came forward during any phrase of the tragic affair," Philip added, remembering hearing that she was an orphan; a school friend of one of the debutantes of that time and that the marriage wasn't a particularly advantageous one according to the senior Vener, from the standpoint of either money or social position.

"We have learned that she was a stranger in Cleveland but not where she came from," Barry repeated. "Can you tell me? Perhaps your father can help me." Barry rose.

"I don't bit. But I will take you to him."

Philip's roadster they soon reached the fashionable suburbs. On a terrace stood a wheel chair in which reclined a solitary figure wrapped to the chin in steamer rugs. Philip began:

"I came to bring a friend out to see you, a prospective client, Mr. Barry. This is my father."

"Glad to see you, Mr. Barry; glad the old man isn't altogether forgotten at the office—Philip, run along."

Philip shot a warning glance at the detective and departed. "I presume you have your proper credentials?" Sergeant Barry's tone was innocent.

"Professional, sir! My son is a fool, but I've handled enough criminal cases in my time to know a detective when I see one, and your visit isn't altogether a surprise. Miss Haskins, my nurse, wouldn't read the latest news of the Vane case to me. I made her do so yesterday before she realized what she had strayed into, and when I learned that this old clerk of mine, Griswold, was mixed up in it, I rather expected that the old scandal would be raked up again."

Barry laughed with boyish frankness. "I won't try to lie you, sir!" he exclaimed. "We have reason to believe that the woman who was killed was some connection of the unfortunate Mrs. Matthew Vener. We know that the latter was a comparative stranger here, and we thought you might be able to tell us where she came from and who her people were."

A faint flush had come into the lady who had descended from the runabout and was crossing the lawn toward them.

"Ada on one of her duty calls!" the old man grumbled. "She may be due to give you more information than I, however, for she was the girl I told you about who brought Irene to Cleveland in the first place."

Barry rose and the old man cackled as he extended his hand. "My dear Ada!" he responded. "You were never more welcome than at this moment!"

CHAPTER XI

"Let me present Mr. Barry, Mrs. Tyrrell," said the invalid, Mr. Barry. "He is a relative of a dead friend of ours. I was just telling him that you were the one person who could give him the information he desires."

"This has been a most fortunate meeting if you can spare me a few minutes, Mrs. Tyrrell, smiled Barry. 'For I must catch the next train back to New York.'

"I was about to suggest that I give you a lift in my car!" she beamed upon him. "We must not tire my dear old friend here and I confess that my curiosity has been aroused. Goodbye, Mr. Scully."

Barry escorted the lady to her runabout.

"Who was this old friend of mine whose relative you know?" asked Mrs. Tyrrell.

"I believe when you knew her first that her name was Irene Barrows, afterwards Mrs. Matt Vener," Barry replied steadily.

All the color vanished from his companion's face and the little car swerved as she gripped the wheel.

"Irene!" she gasped. "Oh, don't remind me of her! Do you know the whole wretched story, Mr. Barry?"

"All except the details of your friendship with her and what you may know of her family."

"When she was seventeen and I a year older I brought her home here to give her a real good time, and she met Matt. I'm not going to say anything about him for he's gone, too, but the whole thing turned out to be a mistake. In a month they were married and two years later his father took on that miserable sneak of a clerk, and of course his wife came to Cleveland, too."

Her lips tightened. "Mrs. Griswold, you mean? The one who ran away with Matt Vener?" Barry asked.

"Yes, she was fascinating. I'll say that for her, even though I never liked her."

"Curiously enough, Irene did, and that makes what happened all the worse. She was brilliant and different, somehow, and, beside her, poor delicate little Irene was like a dull, gray moth to most people."

"And you never heard that she had any relatives in Wheatfield or elsewhere?" Barry asked.

"Why, yes! How stupid of me! There was a young sister that some people on a farm near Wheatfield were taking care of. I forgot about her, for she wasn't at the wedding and I never saw her except once, long after Irene's death."

"A sister!" Barry exclaimed. "When did you see her? What was her first name? Please tell me about her, Mrs. Tyrrell; perhaps she is the relative I know of in New York."

"Well, about seven years after Irene's death and Matt's suicide, a young woman called on me who said she was Mrs. Matthew Vener's sister. Except for being pale and thin, I couldn't see any resemblance, for Irene had dark hair and this girl's looked as though it had been bleached almost white in the sun. "There was a strength and assertiveness in her manner, too, that Irene had never had, and although she was shorter by at least four or five inches her face was as old as the hills."

"For what purpose had she come to you?" Barry looked away as he spoke.

"That was the strangest part of it!" his companion exclaimed. "I supposed, naturally, that she had come to talk of Irene, but instead she asked innumerable questions in a horrid, eager sort of way about about the Griswold woman. She didn't give any first name, simply announced herself as 'Miss Barrows.'"

"Had you ever heard your friend mention a younger sister?" Barry's tone had quickened.

"Yes, at school. She had mentioned her by some silk nickname. I gathered that they came of pretty good old stock but had become reduced in circumstances."

"I knew she wanted her little sister present at her marriage to Matt, but that guardian of hers put his foot down and said he wasn't going to have the child's head filled with notions that would make her discontented; that she would have to stay where she was till she was eighteen."

"Irene went to see her regularly after her marriage, but never said anything about those trips nor brought her to Cleveland."

"Did Irene's sister tell you nothing about herself or her plans for the future?"

"She glanced quickly at him in amazement. "She did mention something about being on her way East."

"What sort of questions did she ask you about Miriam Griswold?" Barry urged. "Think, Mrs. Tyrrell, this may be more important than you know!"

It is not always the men who are unromantic. At times the women exhibit the practical nature. I've illustrated this often in my speeches with this story:

Josephus and Samantha were lovers. They sat under an apple tree in the early summer—the day was balmy and a soft wind blew.

"Ah, Samantha," breathed Josephus in a rapt voice, "listen to the zephyr as it rustles gently through the branches and hear how the trees moan and sigh and sigh and moan melodiously in the breeze."

Samantha looked up brightly into her lover's eyes.

"Well, Josephus," she remarked, "I guess if you were as full of green apples as those trees are, you'd sigh and moan and moan and sigh a lot, too."

AN IDEAL

By Berton Braley

This world would be a heaven, With love and love its heaven, With beauty all about us and with laughter in the air.

And not the least upheaval Of sin or shame or evil, A world devoid of trouble or of battle or of care;

Faith never would grow dim In The hearts of men and women, We'd walk our paths in gladness and charity and peace, With spirit true and tender, We'd fill the world with splendor, And all the hate and jealousy and quarreling would cease;

Life would become a vision Of happiness elysian, The world a perfect paradise To hold us in its thrall, If mid our plots and plans and schemes, We'd realize one-half the dreams Our happy mothers dreamed for us when we were very small. (Copyright, 1923, NEA Service)

A THOUGHT

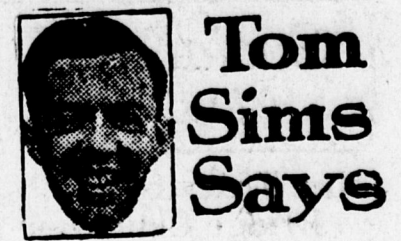

The earth beareth fruit of herself; first the blade, then the ear, then the full grain in the ear.—Mark 4:28.

Happiness, and brightness in God's service, is a great gift. We are told to make melody in our hearts to the Lord. How can we do this unless we are bright and cheerful and serve him gladly? You must live the life, not merely do the work. Live a quiet, peaceable life with God, and the work will come out of it. You will do it simply, unconsciously.—H. Monnell.

ADVENTURE OF THE TWINS

By Olive Barton Roberts

"Hello, there!" called a cheery voice.

Nancy looked up from the letters she was sorting.

Nick looked up from the letters he was stamping.

And Mr. Stamps, the fairy postman, pushed back his cap and looked up, too, from whatever it was he was doing. I forget exactly.

"Hello!" called out all three of them at once. For whom do you suppose it was? Mr. Sprinkle-Blow, the weatherman, from Bluster-Gust Land.

"Well, well, well! Where'd you come from, Sprink?" Mr. Stamps greeted him heartily, reaching his hand out over the counter of the little window where people bought stamps to stick on their letters.

"Texas!" said the fairy weatherman. "I've just been there in my new flying machine that the Green Wizard made for me, to see what was up. They've had about umpteen tornadoes 'n' things, and dear knows, I didn't 'em them."

"Who?" Why Whizzo Tornado himself, who lives at the end of the earth. He just does a dervish dance every once in a while—gets sort of crazy and I have to lecture him. But there! I can't stay too long! I left my new airplane out in the potato field where I could make a good landing and walked the rest of the way. Any mail for me?"

Nancy looked in his box. "Yes, sir! Here's a letter that looks like a valentine."

"All right, sir! I'll open it right now and find out. Nobody loves the weatherman, so I'll bet you it's a comic one. My goodness! Just listen to this. And he read:

"Dear Mr. Sprinkle-Blow, Lost his airplane and couldn't go. Wish he'd lose his rain barrels, too. And the black old clouds he pours it through."

Maybe he'll make the sun to shine. When'er he gets this valentine. "I'll just do it!" laughed the weatherman. "Goodbye, folks."

Mrs. Tracy Gives Bridge Luncheon For Club Ladies

A charming 1 o'clock bridge luncheon was given by Mrs. Richard A. Tracy of 813 Second Street yesterday afternoon in compliment to the ladies of the Tuesday Bridge club. An abundance of gorgeous red tulips and crimson carnations provided a brilliant setting for the affair which was one of the most delightful of the season. Three tables of bridge were played after luncheon with the honors being awarded to Mrs. F. A. Lahr and Mrs. F. B. Strauss.

Give Shower for Miss Hubbert

Mrs. Ethel Conradi and Mrs. A. C. Drysdale gave a kitchen shower in honor of Miss Nellie Hubbert at the home of the latter in the Woodmansee apartments yesterday evening. At 10 o'clock luncheon was served, cover being laid for 12 guests. Decorations in the Drysdale apartment were artistically carried out in hearts, bright red flowers and red hearts forming a pleasing background for the party. The honor guest was presented with a number of useful presents.

Special Program At Council Meeting

The regular meeting of the Women's Community Council will be held tomorrow afternoon at the rest room of the Masonic Temple. The program for the occasion includes a report on child welfare and health work in the public schools, by Miss Esther Teichman, school nurse. A representative from the Y. M. C. A. will discuss the question of bringing a Y. M. C. A. course to Bismarck.

Miss Gertrude Valle, of Denver, Colo., of the American Association for the Organization of Family Welfare work, will speak on the importance of "Family Welfare Work." The meeting will be held from 3:30 to 5 o'clock promptly.

INJURED IN TOBOGGANING
Miss Eva Dingle, stenographer at the district office of the telephone company, sustained torn ligaments of the knee and a sprain of the bone just below the knee as a result of an accident several days ago while tobogganing on a country club hill. Miss Dingle will probably be unable to leave out of her home for several weeks. Miss Pauline Lobach who was in the same accident escaped with only a strained knee. She expects to be back to her position at the local telephone office by the first of the week.

TO GRAND FORKS
Lewis F. Crawford left this morning for Grand Forks to attend the Industrial convention in that city Feb. 5. Mr. D. G. Libby of University of North Dakota and Dean Edward Kennedy of the school of education at the university, returned to Grand Forks this morning after spending several days here attending a meeting of the state historical society.

BIRTHDAY PARTY
A birthday party was given by Mrs. O. E. Anderson yesterday afternoon in honor of the tenth birthday of her little daughter, Miss Allie. Ten little girls were invited to attend the celebration. At five o'clock a birthday luncheon was served. Decorations were carried out in pink, the birthday cake being covered with ten candles.

COUNTY JUDGES MEET
About 15 judges attended the meeting of county judges at the court house this morning. Officers elected for the coming year were Judge E. W. Shaw, chairman; president; Judge P. H. Miller of Washburn, vice-president; Judge I. C. Davies, secretary and treasurer.

THIRD HOUSE DANCE
More than 100 couples attended the second "Third House" dance given at Patterson hall last evening. The large crowd of happy dancers testified to the success of the party which was attended by many of the renorters and representatives and their wives. Music was furnished by the McKenzie orchestra.

TEACHER VISITS MOTHER
Miss Blanche Small, teacher at Zap, was in Bismarck Wednesday, to visit her mother, Mrs. Zera Small who has been ill with pneumonia for some time past. Mrs. Small is reported to be improving.

CONFINED TO HOME
John Thorpe, deputy attorney general, is confined to his home because of illness.

JUMPER IS SURE TO BE HERE AGAIN

Every year there's a variation of the jumper frock. It has become a uniform of comfort and simplicity throughout the warm months. This season's model has the neck cut down to the waist, the better to show a frilled lingerie blouse. It has no sleeves, of course, and the back is cut with a yoke. It hangs straight from the shoulders in the back and is belted in front. What fullness there is, is shirred in on each side.

Then things begin to happen. The guide person decides to do some lording on his own hook, and appropriating the regalia of his petulant nobility, including the monocle, he steps into a stream of unusual adventures. The plot is an intricate one, the scenic background one of grandeur and beauty, and the humor irresistible. Duncan has introduced into it some of the best work he has ever done, including a horseback stunt that would make a rodeo champion swallow twice before attempting.

AT THE MOVIES

THE ELTINGE
Peter B. Kyne's "Pride of Palomar," besides appearing in book form, ran as a serial in Cosmopolitan magazine. It is familiar to many thousands, and the announcement that it has been produced on the screen by Paramount Productions for the Paramount is one which will greatly interest local picture fans. The picture comes to the Eltinge theater for today and tomorrow, Friday and Saturday.

To many also the fact that Frank Borzage who created "Humoresque" and other notable pictures, directed "The Pride of Palomar" will be an assurance of the high quality of this production. The picture deals with the struggle of a young Californian for possession of the family ranch in California against the father of the girl he loves. The girl, played by Marjorie Daw, has to face the consequences of her stand between her father and her lover, and it is absorbing and thrilling to see how she solves the problem.

Forrest Stanley and Miss Daw are the featured players of an all star cast, which includes James Barrow, Joseph Dowling, Warner Oland and other artistic screen artists.

THE CAPITOL
William Duncan, appearing as Ned Lightning in "The Fighting Guide" at the Capitol theater tonight will afford a rare treat for Bismarck sportsmen and out-of-door folks.

For Duncan is first of all an out-door man himself, and consequently one of the most popular screen out-door stars. As Ned Lightning, he simply put on his "outdoors" and filled up the Jimmy pipe and goes to it.

Ned Lightning, in an unguarded moment, undertakes to conduct Lord Chumleigh Winston, plus his valet, his "bawth" tub and many other things, through the Canadian Rockies to his Lordship's syndicate holdings, up back beyond. Remembering a Christmas tree on the exterior, and a volcano on the interior, Ned takes the trail from

ENDORSE PLAN FOR UNITY IN WELFARE WORK

Representatives of Local Organizations Agreed With Association of Commerce

Representatives of lodges, civic associations and others engaged in general welfare work expressed themselves as fully in accord with the plan of the Association of Commerce to establish a central registration bureau for charity cases so that there will be no duplication of effort and greater efficiency in operation and administration of worthy movements might obtain.

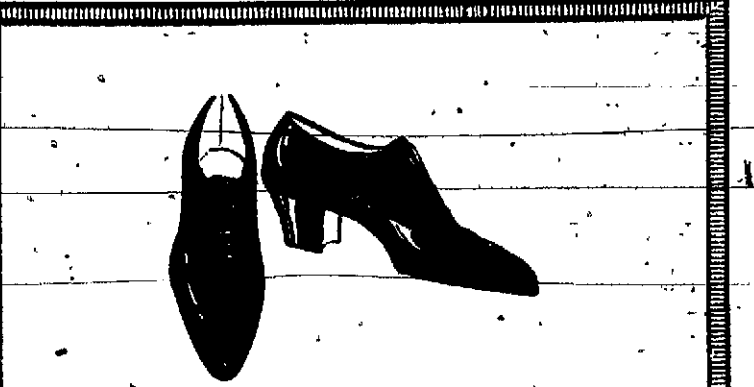

Enthusiastic endorsement was given last evening at a meeting in the Association of Commerce rooms to the general plan. The discussion was instigated by a committee appointed by W. H. Webb, president of the Association of Commerce, and after the expressions relative to the merits of a clearing house for case work, the committee decided to recommend to the board of directors of the Association of Commerce that such a bureau be established.

No recommendation will be made relative to the establishment of a Community Chest at this time. It appears that there are differences of opinion among welfare workers as to the merits of such a budget although it commends itself readily to business men who desire to see all charity matters cleared up in one intensive drive. This matter probably will be made the subject of a special investigation by a larger committee later on.

Miss Gertrude Valle of Denver, social worker, assisted the committee greatly in directing the discussion and informing the heads of the various organizations the scope of welfare work.

Dr. R. S. Towne presided at the meeting. Mrs. T. H. Poole is secretary of the committee. Those present at the conference were:

August Carlson, J. B. Belk, Mrs. A. Pearson, Ferris Corder, Mrs. Edward Bannon, Mrs. R. A. Tracy, Mrs. R. S. Towne, Mrs. F. L. Conklin, Mrs. F. J. Grady, Mrs. H. F. Keller, Mr. G. B. Newcomb, Mrs. M. W. Neff, Rev. C. F. Strutz, B. H. Schneider, Mrs. G. W. Newcomb.

Mrs. Tracy Gives Bridge Luncheon For Club Ladies

A charming 1 o'clock bridge luncheon was given by Mrs. Richard A. Tracy of 813 Second Street yesterday afternoon in compliment to the ladies of the Tuesday Bridge Club. An abundance of gorgeous red tulips and crimson carnations provided a brilliant setting for the affair which was one of the most delightful of the season. Three tables of bridge were played after luncheon with the honors being awarded to Mrs. F. A. Lahr and Mrs. F. B. Strauss.

Give Shower for Miss Hubbert

Mrs. Ethel Conrad and Mrs. A. C. Drysdale gave a kitchen shower in honor of Miss Nillie Hubbert at the home of the latter in the Woodmansee apartments yesterday evening. At 10 o'clock luncheon was served, cover being laid for 12 guests. Decorations in the Drysdale apartment were artistically carried out in hearts, bright red flowers and red hearts forming a pleasing background for the party. The honor guest was presented with a number of useful presents.

Special Program At Council Meeting

The regular meeting of the Women's Community Council will be held tomorrow afternoon at the rest room of the Masonic Temple. The program for the occasion includes a report on child welfare and health work in the public schools, by Miss Esther Teichman, school nurse. A representative from the juvenile bureau discuss the question of bringing a juvenile course to Bismarck.

Miss Gertrude Vaile, of Denver Colo., of the American Association for the organization of family welfare work, will speak on the importance of "Family Welfare Work." The meeting will be held from 3:30 to 5 o'clock promptly.

INJURED IN TOBOGGANING
Miss Eva Dingle, stenographer at the district office of the telephone company, sustained torn ligaments of the knee and a splinter of the bone just below the knee as a result of an accident several days ago while tobogganing on a country club hill. Miss Dingle will probably be unable to be out of her home for several weeks. Miss Pauline Lobach who was in the same accident escaped with only a strained knee. She expects to be back to her position at the local telephone office by the first of the week.

TO GRAND FORKS
Lewis F. Crawford left this morning for Grand Forks to attend the Industrial convention in that city. Feb. 5, Dr. O. G. Libby of University of North Dakota and Dean Edward Kennedy of the school of education at the university, returned to Grand Forks this morning after spending several days here attending a meeting of the state historical society.

BIRTHDAY PARTY
A birthday party was given by Mrs. O. E. Anderson, yesterday afternoon in honor of the tenth birthday of her little daughter, Miss Annyla. Ten little girls were invited to attend the celebration. At five o'clock a birthday luncheon was served. Decorations were carried out in pink, the birthday cake being covered with ten candles.

COUNTY JUDGES MEET
About 15 judges attended the meeting of county judges at the court house this morning. Officers elected for the coming year were Judge B. W. Shaw of Mandan, president; Judge P. H. Miller of Washburn, vice-president; Judge I. C. Davies, secretary and treasurer.

THIRD HOUSE DANCE
More than 100 couples attended the second "Third House" dance given at Patterson hall last evening. The large crowd of happy dancers testified to the success of the party which was attended by many of the senators and representatives and their wives. Music was furnished by the McKenzie orchestra.

TEACHER VISITS MOTHER
Miss Blanche Small, teacher at Zap, was in Bismarck Wednesday, to visit her mother, Mrs. John Small who has been ill with pneumonia for some time past. Mrs. Small is reported to be improving.

W. W. G. GIRLS TO MEET
The W. W. G. Girls of the First Baptist church will meet with Miss Helen Will of 924 Sixth Street Saturday evening with Misses Elizabeth and Norma Craven and Ruth Vansolk as hostesses.

LEAVES ON BUYING TRIP
Mrs. Annie S. Nielsen of the Nielsen Millinery shop left today for Chicago to spend a couple of weeks in selecting her spring millinery supply, and in studying the styles for the coming season.

ENTERTAINS AT LUNCHEON
Mrs. Frank S. Henry entertained a few friends at luncheon yesterday complimentary to Mrs. Alfred Steele of Jamestown, wife of Senator Steele. High score at bridge was won by Mrs. W. H. Bodenstab.

LEAVE FOR SPRING BUYING
Philip Webb left last night for New York City to do the spring buying for Webb Bros. ready-to-wear department.

CITY VISITORS
Max Lang, George Lewis, and H. A. Wildfang of Sterling, were city visitors yesterday.

HERE FOR FEW DAYS

AT THE MOVIES

THE ELTINGE

Peter B. Kyne's "Pride of Palomar" besides appearing in book form, ran as a serial in Cosmopolitan magazine. It is familiar to many thousands, and the announcement that it has been produced on the screen by Cosmopolitan Productions for Paramount is one which will greatly interest local picture fans. The picture comes to the Eltinge theater for today and tomorrow, Friday and Saturday.

To many also the fact that Frank Borzage who created "Humoresque" and other notable pictures, directed "The Pride of Palomar" will be an assurance of the high quality of this production. The picture has a powerful theme. It deals with the struggle of a young Californian for possession of the family ranch in California against the father of the girl he loves. The girl, played by Marguerite Daw, has to face the consequences of her stand between her father and her lover, and it is absorbing and thrilling to see how she solves the problem.

Forrest Stanley and Miss Daw are the featured players of an all star cast, which includes James Barrow, Joseph Dowling, Warner Oland and other artistic screen artists.

THE CAPITOL

William Duncan, appearing as Ned Lightning in "The Lightning Guide" at the Capitol theater tonight will afford a rare treat for Bismarck sportsmen and out-door folks.

For Duncan is first of all an out-door man himself, and consequently one of the most popular screen out-door stars. As Ned Lightning, he simply puts on his "outdoors" fills up the Jimmy pipe and goes to it.

Ned Lightning, in an unguarded moment, undertakes to conduct Lord Chumleigh Winston, plus his valet, his "bawth" tub and many other things, through the Canadian Rockies to his Lordship's syndicate holdings, up back beyond. Resembling a Christmas tree on the exterior, and a volcano on the interior, Ned takes the trail from the railroad, resolved, if possible to make the best of a bad bargain. One, two, three days of torture as the cook, maid, butler, and laundryman of his protegee, and New blows up. Then things begin to happen. The guide person decides to do some lording on his own hook, and appropriating the regalia of his petulant nobility, including the monocle, he steps into a stream of unusual adventures.

The plot is an intricate one, the scenic background one of grandeur and beauty, and the humor irresistible. Duncan has introduced into it some of the best work he has ever done, including a horseback stunt that would make a rodeo champion swallow twice before attempting.

"Never Fails" makes good bread. Try a sack for your next baking.

Superintendents Concluded Meet Here Today

The last day of the three-day convention being held here by the county superintendents was opened this morning by a discussion of the "certification of teachers" by Miss Hazel Nielson of the Certification Bureau.

The state program of education for the coming year was outlined by Miss Minnie J. Nielson. The remainder of the morning was devoted to an open discussion of questions confronting county superintendents. The superintendents were honor guests at a 1 o'clock luncheon given for them at the state penitentiary. After luncheon they were taken through the twin plant. The meeting was brought to a close this afternoon by a visit to the legislature.

THE STATE'S OLDEST NEWSPAPER
(Established 1873)

GIVES YOU PEP

When you need stimulation, eat a few lumps of sugar—and you'll get as much "kick" as from an alcoholic cocktail. So claims a medical research man of high standing in his profession.

He adds: "Most people will laugh at that statement, but it's a chemical truth. The sugar positively will stimulate the physical body as much as the cocktail. The mental exhilaration may seem greater from a cocktail than from lamp sugar, but that's chiefly the power of the imagination. The cocktail drinker gets a 'kick' because he expects it, is firmly convinced that he'll get it. Sugar doesn't seem to give this same effect—because the sugar eater doesn't expect it, hence his imagination doesn't create it."

Mental stimulation is at least 50 per cent imagination.

A strong whisky highball, if you tell the drinker it is very weak, is not apt to stimulate him mentally as much as a weak one if you tell him it's half whisky, half ginger ale.

Exhilaration and depression are largely states of mind.

Sugar in the stomach is like coal in the furnace. It rapidly is converted into heat and energy. That's why so many athletes, especially football players, instinctively crave for lumps of sugar before they enter a contest. Sugar "gets to them" quickly—is transformed into energy and heat sooner than any other food.

Newspaper men, as a class, are notorious candy fiends. Few of them realize it, but they crave sugar because of its stimulating power.

Many candy fiends are really "sugar drunkards."

Did you ever notice that some girls who constantly munch candy are geared up to an emotional exhilaration that resembles intoxication?

If you want to prove all this, try what doctors call the finger weight test for exhaustion. Hitch a small weight (about two ounces) to your fore-finger. Then count how many times, with your hand parallel with the floor, you can raise and lower the finger and its attached weight. After a certain number of times, your finger will get exhausted and a little weight will seem to weigh a ton.

Try the same experiment again, after eating several lumps of sugar, and you'll be able to lift the little weight a fourth or a fifth more times than when you haven't stimulated yourself with sugar.

The stimulation from sugar is of longer duration than the "kick" from alcohol. Also, sugar does not have alcohol's depressive reaction.

PROFITS

One of the big Chicago mail order houses issues its financial statement, showing that it sold $160,648,152 worth of goods in 1922, and made a profit of $5,435,168.

That is doing business on a slender margin—a profit of less than four cents on a dollar.

In 1921 the company showed an operating loss of $16,400,000.

It is a law of life that all human activity has its ups and downs and a constant struggle to survive. This is as true of corporations as of individuals, though most of us would prefer to be a corporation. Big trees do not escape the cyclone.

DEPENDS

Exports of American raw cotton in 1922 totaled over 673 million dollars. This was a gain of about 139 million dollars, compared with the year before.

On the other hand, only 6,113,813 bales of cotton were exported in 1922. This was a loss of 360,292 bales, compared with 1921.

So you can prove that cotton exports last year gained, then turn around and prove they slumped. Both are correct. The dollar, by reason of its fluctuating value, is deceptive as a measure of business activity.

VALENTINO

The press agents announce that Valentino, film star, will get $8000 a week in vaudeville. His wife is booked with him and their act carries its own orchestra. After paying expenses the Valentinos should be at least $5000 a week to the good.

While press agents never underestimate, you cannot help compare Valentino's income with the salary of high government officials, leading scientists and heads of gigantic enterprises. Pondering which, it occurs to us that there are things harder to understand than the Einstein theory.

PESTS

In Egypt explorers have dug into the tomb of an ancient king, unearthing treasures worth an estimated 40 million dollars. The whole affair has been thrillingly romantic, revealing that the rulers of Egypt had fabulous luxuries.

The latest finds are fly-swatters, which sort of takes the edge off the romance of being a king. Even kings (thanks be!) are susceptible to the pests of life—flies, itch, dirt and monotony.

BUILDING

About six billion dollars worth of building will be completed by Americans this year, estimates Copper and Brass Research Association. Here's how it'll be divided: For each $634 for industrial buildings, $980 will be spent for apartment houses, $406 for churches, $720 for dwellings (homes), $456 for hospitals, $652 for hotels, $616 for office buildings, $252 for public buildings, $124 for public garages and $1180 for schools. The largest expenditure is for schools—and should be.

EDITORIAL REVIEW

Comments reproduced in this column may or may not express the opinion of The Tribune. They are reproduced here in order that our readers may have both sides of important issues which are being discussed in the press of the day.

TOWNSHIP AHOY.

Gone are the days when the stranger motorist was grumped at by the townlets he traversed. The posted warning from the Selectmen that once baldly threatened him is now, if it survives at all, but a pretty inscription in quaint lettering on a pleasant tavern-like sign-board of cheer. The suggestion about moderating one's speed is just a well-groomed Old English hint. Even the "Slow Down" notice heralding a school is really an invitation to pause and view the new educational building in its landscape-garden setting.

Such hospitality. "Welcome to Quagmire, the Suburb Beautiful." "This is Sparrowhurst, the Town of Nestling Homes." "Gumfret Bids You Greeting." And all in the most refined letters of introduction.

Even before one really arrives, the hand of fellowship wields its paint brush. "You are now approaching Dugston, birthplace of Samuel P. Pretzie, inventor of Holepoot Macaroni." History is unfolded by yards and yards. "Here in East Blueberry in 1637 William Longface signed the treaty with Chief Whiffing Bull, granting the Whoopalo Indians the right to move on."

But the spirit of the precious past is brought to more prominently into the present by the indefatigable Ye Oldes—Ye Olde Crumble Inn, Ye Olde Gifte Shoppe, Ye Olde Tea Room, Ye Olde Bun Parlor. To say that the innocent motorist is welcomed by them is to put it bluntly. He is fairly sobbed.

To a person of a different nature this extreme cordiality is disconcerting. He hardly knows how to reciprocate. And even a car has its sensibilities. Fancy a Rolls-Royce, with that polished repression which characterizes all Britishers, best by such importunate affluence. Enough to make its radiator boil over.

On behalf of both car and master it would be salutary, when visiting strange townships, to carry a tall pennant with a suitable P. C. device; so that in departing one might respond to the "You Are Now Leaving Wankusness" sign by flinging back: "Thanks. We are deeply affected.—L. M. in Life."

ARE MODERNS TOO TOUCHY?

The time was—and not so long ago—when a sweetheart or a sweet privilege of dancing on his or her partner's feet if he or she desired or couldn't do any better dancing. Not now. Then it was one of the proof of that deathless love through which lovers from the time men began to use spoken language have devoted themselves to a woman's affection. Not now.

Whether men have been cured of the perjury habit in their amorous adventures, or whether they have just got plain fed up on the endless brand of love, is not entirely clear. But when a groom tells his beaming bride that she almost trampled his feet off with her "original dancing," and that he is through dancing with her, what is the human-born inference? Isn't it perfectly clear that a mighty change has entered when no one was looking?

The groom, orled with a broken heart and took poison. She has a fighting chance to get well. What hurt her so much was that she knew her groom is "the best dancer in Brooklyn," so she took dancing lessons for some time before her marriage in order to be a dutiful wife. And see what became of it! "He up and told me my dancing was plain-bum." Could any bride only three days old stand for that?

The groom of the Victorian days would have remembered those sore extra pleasures because they came from the "tootles" of the sweetest girl in the universe. Not now. The modern young man is "touchy." Perhaps, too, the brides of today are not quite what they were in the Victorian days.—Pittsburgh Leader.

LUCK

Those who are not familiar with the terminology of poker will not realize what a shock it was to a certain lowan to fill out a royal spade flush. But, assuming that the event was a rare and fortunate one, the lowan's reaction is revealing. He believed that the death of the lucky man was a fitting climax.

Perhaps, however, it was. Luck or fate or whatever unseen power it is that mixes up trivial human affairs has no rules to guide it except the rule of the unexpected; and it does, on many an occasion, turn relief into sorrow. It seems to bear grudges. Can one be sure, for instance, that the lowan whose death came so suddenly had not been notably unlucky throughout his life? If he were, the stroke of good fortune which caused his death had a bitterly logical outcome.

There was an old peasant who lived near Carcassonne—so says an old French poem. Longing all his life to see the famous town, he was always unable to make the short trip which would free him temporarily from the narrow rut of his daily life. At last his desire was to be fulfilled. On the morrow he was surely to go to Carcassonne, but that night he died. Luck such as this is cruel; but if luck were not occasionally cruel it would not be luck.—Baltimore Sun.

SOLITARY CONFINEMENT, FOR AT LEAST A YEAR.

The STEP on the STAIRS

by ISABEL OSTRANDER

"We are not criminal lawyers!" the other stiffened. "My father is a paralytic, chained to his wheel chair. What can he know of any crime, especially one committed in New York?"

"Because his memory doubtless reaches back, let us say, fourteen years. Have you heard of the recent murder of the celebrated portrait painter, Mrs. Vance? Does 'Vance' suggest a substitute for that of your father's late partner, Vennor?"

The young attorney gasped and seized the edge of his desk. "Heavens! You don't mean that contorted who ran off with Vennor's car? I was once a schoolboy at the time but I remember the scandal! Young Mrs. Vennor herself died soon afterward."

"It is odd under the circumstances that Matt Vennor's wife's family didn't come forward and claim her, is it not?—when a groom tells his beaming bride that she almost trampled his feet off with her 'original dancing,' and that he is through dancing with her, what is the human-born inference? Isn't it perfectly clear that a mighty change has entered when no one was looking?"

"He up and told me my dancing was plain-bum." Could any bride only three days old stand for that? The groom of the Victorian days would have remembered those sore extra pleasures because they came from the "tootles" of the sweetest girl in the universe. Not now. The modern young man is "touchy." Perhaps, too, the brides of today are not quite what they were in the Victorian days.—Pittsburgh Leader.

"I doubt it. But I will take you to him." In Philip's roadster they soon reached the fashionable suburbs. On a terrace stood a wheel chair in which reclined a solitary figure wrapped to the chin in steamer rugs. "Philip began."

"I came to bring a friend out to see you, a prospective client, Mr. Barry. This is my father."

"Glad to see you, Mr. Barry; glad the old man isn't altogether forgotten at the office.—Philip, run along."

Philip shot a warning glance at the detective and departed. "Now fire away, Mr. Barry. I presume you have your proper credentials?"

"Social?" Sergeant Barry's tone was innocent. "Professional, sir! My son is a fool, but I've handled enough criminal cases in my time to know a detective when I see one, and your visit isn't altogether a surprise. Miss Haskins, my nurse, wouldn't read the latest news of the Vance case to me. I made her do so yesterday before she realized what she had strayed into, and when I learned that that old clerk of ours, Griswold, was mixed up in it, I rather expected that the old scandal would be raked up again."

Barry laughed with boyish frankness. "I won't try to lie you, sir!" he exclaimed. "We have reason to believe that the woman who was killed was some connection of the unfortunate Mrs. Matthew Vennor. We know that the latter was a comparative stranger here, and we thought you might be able to tell us where she came from and who her people were."

A faint flush had come into the lady who had descended from the runabout and was crossing the lawn toward them.

"Add on one of her duty call!" the old man grumbled. "She may be able to give you more information than I, however, for she was the girl I told you about who brought Irene to Cleveland in the first place."

Barry rose and the old man called as he extended his hand. "My dear Ada!" he responded. "You were never more welcome than at this moment!"

CHAPTER XI

"Let me present Mr. Barry, Mrs. Terrell," said the invalid. Mr. Barry thought he knew a relative of a dead friend of hers, I was just telling him that you were the one person who could give him the information he desires."

"This has been a most fortunate meeting if you can spare me a few minutes, Mrs. Terrell, smiled Barry, 'for I must catch the next train back to New York.'

"I was about to suggest that I give you a lift in my car!" she beamed upon him. "We must not tire my dear old friend here and I confess that my curiosity has been aroused. Goodbye, Mr. Scully."

Barry escorted the lady to her runabout. "Who was this old friend of mine whose relative you know?" asked Mrs. Terrell.

"I believe when you knew her first that her name was Irene Barrows, afterwards Mrs. Matt Vennor," Barry replied steadily.

"All the color vanished from his companion's face and the little car swerved as she gripped the wheel. "Irene!" she gasped. "Oh, don't remind me of her! Do you know the whole wretched story, Mr. Barry?"

"All except the details of your friendship with her and what you may know of her family."

"When she was seventeen and I a year older I brought her home here to give her a real good time, and she met Matt. I'm not going to say anything about him for he's gone to be a mistake. In a month they were married and two years later his father took on that miserable sneak of a clerk, and of course his wife came to Cleveland, too."

Her lips tightened.

"His sister, you mean? The one who ran away with Matt Vennor?" Barry asked.

"Yes. She was fascinating, I'll say that for her, even though I never liked her."

"Curiously enough, Irene did, and that makes what happened all the worse. She was brilliant and different, somehow, and, beside her, poor delicate little Irene was like a dull, gray moth to most people."

"And you never heard that she had any relatives in Wheatfield or elsewhere?" Barry asked.

"Why, yes! How stupid of me! There was a young sister that some people on a farm near Wheatfield were taking care of. I forgot about her, for she wasn't at the wedding and I never saw her except once, long after Irene's death."

"A sister?" Barry exclaimed. "When did you see her? What was her first name? Please tell me about her, Mrs. Terrell; perhaps she is the relative I know of in New York."

"Well, about seven years after Irene's death and Matt's suicide, a young woman called on me who said she was Mrs. Matthew Vennor's sister. Except for being pale and slim I couldn't see any resemblance, for Irene had dark hair and this girl's looked as though it had been bleached almost white in the sun."

"There was a strength and superiority in her manner, too, that Irene had never had, and although she was shorter by at least four or five inches her face was as old as the hills."

"For what purpose had she come to you?" Barry looked away as he spoke.

"That was the strangest part of it," his companion exclaimed. "I supposed, naturally, that she had come to talk of Irene, but instead she asked innumerable questions in a horrid, eager sort of way about—about the Griswold woman. She didn't give any first name, simply announced herself as 'Miss Barrows.'"

"Had you ever heard your friend mention a younger sister?" Barry's tone had quickened.

"Yes, at school. She had mentioned her by some other nickname. I gathered that they came of pretty good stock but had become reduced in circumstances."

"I know she wanted her little sister present at her marriage to Matt, but that guardian of hers put his foot down and said he wasn't going to have the girl here, filled with notions that would make her discontented; that she would have to stay where she was till she was eighteen."

"Irene went to see her regularly after her marriage, but never said anything about these trips nor brought her to Cleveland."

"Did Irene's sister tell you nothing about herself or her plans for the future?"

"I believe she did mention something about being on her way East."

"What sort of questions did she ask about her sister?"

Barry urged. "Think, Mrs. Terrell; this may be more important than you know!"

She glanced quickly at him in amazement. (Continued in Our Next Issue) Copyright, 1923, NEA Service)

CAPITOL JOKE

By Frederick W. Dallinger
U. S. Representative From Massachusetts, Eighth District

It is not always the men who are unromantic. At times the women exhibit the practical nature I've illustrated that often in my speeches with this story:

Josephus and Samanthu were lovers. They sat under an apple tree in the early summer—the day was balmy and a soft wind blew.

"Ah, Samanthu," breathed Josephus, "in a soft voice, listen to the zephyr as it rustles gently through the branches and hear how the trees moan and sigh and sigh and moan melodiously in the breeze."

Samanthu looked up brightly into her lover's eyes. "Remarkable," she remarked. "I guess if you were as full of green apples as those trees are, you'd sigh and moan and moan and sigh a lot, too."

AN IDEAL

By Berton Riley
This world would be a heaven, With hope and love its heaven. With beauty all about us and with laughter in the air, And not the least upheaval Of sin or shame or evil, A world devoid of trouble or of battle or of care;

Faith never would grow dim in The hearts of men and women, We'd walk our paths in gladness and charity and peace, With untried true and untried peace, We'd fill the world with splendor, And all the hate and jealousy and quarreling would cease;

Life would become a vision Of happiness, a perfect paradise To hold us in its thrall, If mid our plots and plans and schemes, We'd realize one-half the dreams Our happy mothers dreamed for us when we were very small. (Copyright, 1923, NEA Service)

ADVENTURE OF THE TWINS

By Olive Barton Roberts

"Hello, there!" called a cheery voice.

Nancy looked up from the letters she was sorting.

Nick looked up from the letters he was stamping.

And Mr. Stamps, the fairy postman, pushed back his cap and looked up, too, from whatever it was he was doing. I forget exactly.

"Hello!" called out all three of them at once. For whom do you suppose it was? Mr. Sprinkle-Blow, the weatherman, from Bluster-Gust Land.

"Well, well, well! Where'd you come from, Sprink?" Mr. Stamps greeted him heartily, reaching his hand out over the counter of the little window where people bought stamps to stick on their letters.

"Texal!" said the fairy weatherman. "I've just been there in my new flying machine that the Green Wizard made for me, to see what was up. They've had about umpteens-tens-hundreds of things, and dear knows, I didn't send them."

"Who did?"

"Who? Why? Whizzo Tornado himself, who lives at the end of the earth. He just does a dervish dance once in a while—sort of crazy and I have to lecture him. But there! I can't stay too long! I left my new airplane out in the potato field where I could make a good landing, and walked the rest of the way. Any mail for me?"

Nancy looked in his box. "Yes, sir! Here's a letter that looks like a valentine."

"All right, sir! I'll open it right now and find out. Nobody loves the weatherman, so I'll bet you it's a comic one. My goodness! Just listen to this. And he reads: 'Dear Mr. Sprinkle-Blow! Lost his airplane and couldn't go, Wish he'd lose his rain barrels, too, And the black old clouds ho pours it through. Maybe he'll make the sun to shine, Whenever he gets this valentine.' It'll just do to let the weatherman. (To Be Continued) (Copyright, 1923, NEA Service)

A THOUGHT

The earth beareth fruit of herself; first the blade, then the ear, then the full grain in the ear.—Mark 4:28.

Happiness, and brightness in God's service, is a great gift. We are told to make melody in our hearts to the Lord. How can we do this unless we are bright and cheerful and serve him gladly? You must live the life, not merely do the work. Live a quiet, peaceable life with God and the work will come out of it. You will do it simply, unconsciously.—H. Monsell.

Sisler Fails To Hit Safely In Only 17 Games

St. Louis, Feb. 2.—George Sisler yesterday broke two records held by "posi" Cobb, statistical addition, Sisler led the American League in batting, and was the most valuable player in the American League. By NEA Service. St. Louis, Feb. 2.—Baseball fans and writers overlook the fielding ability of Rogers Hornsby, if you will take the word of Manager Branch Rickey of the Cardinals. "Of course, I know many of the experts won't agree with me, but I consider Hornsby one of the greatest fielding second basemen of all time. I have watched Lajoie, Collins, Evers, Ritchey and other greats in action, but I will take Hornsby for mine. ## Hopeless Cripple at Fourteen Years, Now Contender for Wrestling Title

A hopeless cripple at 14 years of age—a real contender for the world's heavyweight wrestling championship at 25 years of age. Paralyzed on one side so that an arm and limb were useless; his physical condition that of an invalid; his growth retarded, it was by sheer determination that Allan Eustace, Kansas farmer boy, developed what experts declare is one of the most perfect bodies in the country today. He now stands six feet, three inches tall and weighs 235 pounds without an ounce of superfluous flesh.

Eustace was born on a farm near Wakefield, Kas., which is about 20 miles from Junction City. Through heavy lifting while working on the farm he became paralyzed.

The usual medical treatment was given but failed to effect a cure. Then his attention was attracted by an article on wrestling in a magazine. He became interested in the picture, illustrating the various holds and development of muscles by prominent wrestlers and by the aid of some of his companions began exercising and working the various holds known to wrestling. Eustace soon found his condition improving as the result of the stretching and use of the muscles, circulation began to resume coursing through the stagnated veins and in two years he made his first public appearance. At the age of 18 he won the amateur championship of Kansas.

Since entering the professional game he has defeated Jack Taylor, Charley Cutler, Paul Martenon, Jim London, Salvatore Chevalier, Ivan Linow, John Grandavich and many other prominent heavyweights.

Wins 100 Straight Games—Team Claims Basketball Title

By NEA Service. New York, Feb. 2.—There are the days of basketball records. In the west the Vincennes, Ind., team has been attracting much attention in interscholastic circles. During the last three years the Vincennes team has not been beaten on its home floor and has lost only one game in the last 56 played.

Down east the Passaic, N. J., high school five is the big noise. The Passaic team seems to outclass the high school fives in its section, as it has won 100 straight games.

Inter-sectional games in football created keen interest in the gridiron sport last year. A number of games were staged, not only by the colleges but the preparatory schools as well. Why not an inter-sectional game between Vincennes and Passaic? It would seem from the records of the two clubs that they are entitled to represent the west and east.

Coach Blood of the Passaic team is ready to talk business with any high school team that disputes the right of Passaic to be called the national champs of their class.

BULLSEYES OF BASKETBALL

To Walter Johnson goes the credit of pitching the three greatest consecutive games I ever saw a major league pitcher turn in.

Johnson performed his three remarkable pitching feats on September 4, 5, 7, 1908, against the New York Americans in that city. All that Johnson did was shut out the Yankees, then known as the Highlanders, in three straight games. The peculiar part of the feat was the more Johnson pitched the better he got.

In those days the single umpire system was in use in the major leagues. It was my very great privilege to be entirely in charge of those three games, which I believe stand unequalled from a pitching point of view.

In the old days of the single umpire system, the arbiters always welcomed pitchers' battles. Since it is necessary for an umpire to cover every play with the single system in view, close games in which the pitchers were masters of the situation, always made the work much easier.

While those three games in which Johnson shut out New York on consecutive days were remarkable pitching feats, they were soft picking from the angle of the umpire.

The reason New York was helpless before Johnson, while Washington would early assume a lead that would make the game secure with Johnson going at top speed, I didn't have to do much running around the bases in those three games, as mighty few players got on.

The first game was played on Friday, Sept. 4, 1908, Washington winning 3 to 0, Johnson allowing the losers only six hits.

The second game was played Saturday, Sept. 5, 1908, Washington de-

BY BILLY EVANS.

Who will be Jack Dempsey's next opponent?

Will Harry Wills, admittedly the best of the colored fighters, get the first crack at the champion? What about Floyd Johnson? Did his win over the veteran Bill Brennan place him in line for consideration?

Should any attention be paid to the demand on the part of Jesse Willard for a return bout? Dempsey won the championship from Willard, and usually a defeated fighter always receives consideration when seeking a return engagement.

Then there is Tommy Gibbons. What about Sir Thomas?

A year ago Gibbons was considered a certainty for a Dempsey meeting. Then came the upset by Harry Greb, which cost Gibbons at least $100,000.

He could have easily demanded and received such a sum had it not been for his setback at the hands of Greb. Greb Bout Costs.

Despite his defeat on points in the Greb bout, Gibbons certainly looks up as worthy of a chance. Dempsey fought Brennan, Carpenter and Miske in championship bouts, and none of the trio had any more to recommend themselves as contenders than has Gibbons.

Harry Greb is the most difficult fighter in the world to fathom. He will outpoint most any fighter in the business, who fails to land a sleep-producing punch.

Prior to the bout with Gibbons I had a talk with Harry before he stepped into the ring. I asked him how he felt about the outcome.

"Nothing to it unless Gibbons slips one over and stops me. He will see a million or more boxing gloves if the bout goes the limit."

feating New York 6 to 0. Johnson allowed four hits.

In those days Sunday ball was not permitted in New York, both teams enjoying a day of rest. Monday was Labor Day, two games being scheduled. In Monday's papers, Joe Cantillon, the Washington manager, announced that if Johnson shut out New York in the third game he would send Walter right back for the fourth consecutive time.

New York used the great Jack Chesbro against Johnson to break the shut-out epidemic. Johnson turned in the best game of the three, winning 4 to 0, New York making only two measly hits.

In the late innings of the game, Johnson was hit on the right arm by one of Chesbro's fast spitballs. The game was delayed about five minutes while Johnson had the arm massaged. He finished the game, but during the intermission the arm be-

That is just what happened. Greb never let Gibbons set, showed him a million gloves and won as he pleased.

Grebe Versus Dempsey.

If Greb fought Dempsey and Jack was unable to knock him out, it is just possible that Dempsey would look as bad in defeat as did Gibbons. All of which makes it seem that possibly the public and the promoters are attaching entirely too much importance to Gibbons' defeat by Greb.

When the mention of a bout between Gibbons and Dempsey is made, the question of size is always raised. Some of the ring experts feel that physically Gibbons is not a big enough man to have a chance with Dempsey. Only recently the New York Boxing Commission vetoed a Dempsey-Gibbons bout for that reason.

Such talk is ridiculous. Working along that line of reasoning it was cruelly to let Dempsey step into the ring with Willard. Jesse towered over Dempsey in every way. There is no such difference between the physique of Dempsey and Gibbons.

Fitz Feared No One.

"The bigger they are, the harder they fall." The late Bob Fitzsimmons coined that expression. Many a time he proved the truth of it.

Dempsey, in his bout with Willard, bore out the wisdom of lanky Bob's now famous speech.

"The bigger they are, the harder they fall." Gibbons is entitled to consideration, as are a number of other heavyweights who are clamoring for a chance.

While Floyd Johnson didn't stop Bill Brennan, his victory over the trial horse of the heavyweight division makes him a promising possibility.

came so sore that Cantillon decided not to risk working Walter in the second game of the day.

Three shut-outs in three consecutive games, allowing 6, 4 and 2 hits in each affair, is to my way of thinking a really wonderful pitching feat.

RISK PREMIUMS

Grand Forks, N. D., Feb. 2.—The city commission authorized the payment of two years' premiums to the state workmen's compensation fund at its regular meeting recently. The decision to pay the premiums was made on advice of the city attorney, who held that under the law the state could force payments.

The amount for the two years to approximately $6,000, according to Chas. Evanson, city auditor, who held that funds were available at this time to pay one year, with a credit of about $1,000 for the second year. Mr. Evanson said that Grand Forks had paid the premiums for some time, but as the state was not paying either side, they had been withheld here to await the outcome of the decisions taken by the others. The two premiums which are unpaid are about $3,500 each, because the state has suffered no losses among city employees of any kind. But with a credit of $1,000 it is been given Grand Forks.

ten NEA Service. St. Louis, Feb. 2.—George Sisler yesterday broke two records held by "Pop" Cobb. Sisler made the year 1922 record out as the big season in the career of the Browns' star. Sisler hit safely in 41 consecutive games. That feat shattered Cobb's record of 40 straight, made in 1911. In 1911 Cobb batted .420, according to the averages. To be exact, mark for the season was .4195. In the season Sisler swatted .4197. Sisler's share by the franchise of a point. Sisler has 1922 average. Sisler only 17 hitless games. In 53 games he made one hit, in 35 he made two, in 25 he had three, while in 12 games he made four hits. Some of the Cleveland pitchers were easy. 400 for Sisler. Against the Indians, he had a batting average of .495, slip.

HIGH PRICES FOR HORNSBY

By NEA Service. St. Louis, Feb. 2.—Baseball fans and writers overlooked the fielding ability of Rogers Hornsby, if you will take the word of Manager Branch Rickey of the Cardinals. "Because Hornsby is such a wonderful hitter, the fans fail to appreciate his remarkable fielding ability," says Rickey. "Of course, I know many of the experts won't agree with me, but I consider Hornsby one of the greatest fielding second basemen of all time. I have watched Lajoie, Collins, Evers, Ritzey and other greats in action, but I will take Hornsby for mine. "All things considered, Hornsby is the greatest—the most valuable second baseman in the history of the game."

Billy Evans Says

"Did you ever put a ball player out of a game and then change your mind and let him remain in the contest?" "At a fanning bee recently that question was asked me. Probably no more foolish question could be asked an umpire, yet it so happened that

Hopeless Cripple at Fourteen Years, Now Contender for Wrestling Title

A hopeless cripple at 14 years of age—a real contender for the world's heavyweight wrestling championship at 25 years of age! Paralyzed on one side so that an arm and thumb were useless; his physical condition that of an invalid; his growth retarded, it was by sheer determination that Allan Eustace, Kansas farmer boy, developed what experts declare is one of the most perfect bodies in the country today. He now stands six feet, three inches tall and weighs 235 pounds without an ounce of superfluous flesh. Eustace was born on a farm near Wakefield, Kas., which is about 20 miles from Junction City. Through heavy lifting while working on the farm he became paralyzed. The usual medical treatment was given but failed to effect a cure. Then his attention was attracted by an article on wrestling in a magazine. He became interested in the picture, illustrating the various holds and development of muscles by prominent wrestlers and by the aid of some of his companions began exercising and working the various muscles known to wrestling. Eustace soon found his condition improving as the result of the stretching and use of the muscles, circulation began to resume coursing through the stagnated veins and in two years he made his first public appearance. At the age of 18 he won the amateur championship of Kansas. Since entering the professional game he has defeated Jack Taylor, Charley Cutler, Paul Martenson, Jim London, Salvatore Chevalier, Ivan Linow, John Grandovich and many other prominent heavyweights.

Wins 100 Straight Games—Team Claims Basketball Title

By NEA Service. New York, Feb. 2.—These are the days of basketball records. In the west the Vincennes, Ind., team has been attracting much attention in inter-scholastic circles. During the last three years the Vincennes team has had only one loss in its 56 games. Down east the Passaic, N. J., high school five is the big noise. The Passaic team seems to outclass the high school fives in its section, as it has won 100 straight games.

BULLSEYES OF BASKETBALL

To Walter Johnson goes the credit of pitching the three greatest consecutive games I ever saw a major league pitcher turn in. Johnson performed his three remarkable pitching feats on September 4, 5, 7, 1908, against the New York Americans in that city. All that Johnson did was shut out the Yankees, then known as the Highlanders, in three straight games. The peculiar part of the feat was the more Johnson pitched the better he got. In those days the single umpire system was in use in the major leagues. It was my very great privilege to be entirely in charge of those three games, which I believe stand unexcelled from a pitching point of view. In the old days of the single umpire system, the arbiters always welcomed pitchers' battles. Since it is necessary for an umpire to cover every play with the single system in close games in which the pitchers were masters of the situation, always made the work much easier. While these three games in which Johnson shut out New York on consecutive days were remarkable pitching feats, they were soft picking from the angle of the umpire. The reason—New York was helpless before Johnson, while Washington would early assume a lead that would make the game secure with Johnson going at top speed. I didn't have to do much running around the bases in those three games, as might few players got on. The first game was played on Friday, Sept. 4, 1908, Washington winning 3 to 0, Johnson allowing the losers only six hits. The second game was played Saturday, Sept. 5, 1908, Washington de-

CREDIT BILL PASSAGE SEEN BY SPONSORS

Washington, Feb. 2.—Passage by the senate today of the Lenoir-Anderson farm credits bill, regarded as certain when a vote is taken under the agreement reached Wednesday, will complete action by that body on its former relief program. The Copper bill, companion measure to the bill to be voted on today, recently passed the senate and has been referred to a committee of the house. The unanimous consent agreement for a roll-call today on the Lenoir-Anderson bill provides for limitation of debate after 2 o'clock. A number of amendments remained to be disposed of before the final vote.

DODGE BROTHERS CUTTING DOWN MILEAGE COST

Dodge Brothers, in the precision of their manufacture, are making an honest endeavor to give the public the lowest possible cost-per-mile transportation. Of course the true foundation of this, says M. B. Gilman, their local dealer, is great care in both materials and manufacture, that go into the car itself, for unless each car goes out and runs many thousands of miles at small cost, it is impossible to accomplish this low running cost. But when we know of Dodge Brothers cars right here at home, in our own vicinity, that have run over 200,000 miles, and many that are now operating for their eighth year, we feel that the public acknowledges that for long continued, low-cost operation, Dodge Brothers cars stand absolutely alone. One of the vital reasons for this wonderful service is the fact that each car, before leaving the factory, passes through over 5200 inspections.

But there is another most important consideration in connection with low-cost operation, and one which too many buyers disregard until after they have purchased a car. I refer to the prices for Service Parts. As a very impressive illustration of what this means in dollars and cents to the owner—we have taken the parts prices and another car selling at about the same figure as Dodge Brothers cars. We have assembled a car "on paper" with the parts prices of the two cars side by side. The total prices of the one car comes to the high figure of $1571.55, while exactly the same Dodge Brothers assembly totals only $1151.55. In other words, the buyer of the first car actually pays a penalty of about 50 per cent and at the same time has a car, which is looked upon by the public, as of doubtful value.

We always regret, that from the large number of visitors at our sales room, so very few ever inquire "What Comes After the Purchase Price," and ask to really see the good parts used in Dodge Brothers cars, and ask about these low prices. This matter of Parts Prices really deserves more consideration and study by the motor car owner and purchaser.

64 PER CENT OF CROP HAS BEEN MARKETED

St. Paul, Feb. 2.—Sixty-four and six-tenths percent of the 1922 crop from Minnesota, North and South Dakota and Montana had been transported to market up to Jan. 1, 1923, leaving only 35.4 percent to be moved after that date, according to the report of P. H. Kirk, federal agricultural statistician for Minnesota, who is chairman of the grain committee of the northwest regional advisory board.

The report, which was read and explained yesterday by Mr. Kirk before the executive committee of the board recommends that detailed statistics be gathered before the next crop comes on, which will permit advance estimates of the number of cars which will be required at each station to handle the crop movement.

As a second step guarding against a recurrence of congested traffic conditions such as occurred last fall, the committee recommends that the car service division provide for sufficient available cars to care for the movement and that the railroads be made responsible for equitable distribution of these cars on their own lines.

FRESH BUTTERMILK

Who is Your Milkman?

THE OLD, OLD STORY.

You of course remember the old, old story of the colored man who flatly refused to attend the funeral of his neighbor's third wife.

Being questioned by Mandy, who wore the knickers, as to "How Come?" Uncle Joe replied, Well, you see Mandy, I don't like to be acceptin' other folks' politeness when I never have nothin' of the kind to offer in return.

Stories are stories, but in the old and highly colored one which we have just related, there is involved a thought and principle which runs through every strand of life's warp and woof.

The clouds say, "We will furnish the rain," the sun says, "I will furnish the heat" and then they both demand that the earth shall give them something worth while in return. When man refuses to co-operate with Nature, there comes forth thistles instead of figs, and fruits and flowers give place to weeds.

This is simply obeying the natural, the unwritten law of compensation. The law the old colored man was unconsciously obeying when he refused to attend his neighbor's funeral.

When you give us an order for any of our Guaranteed Dairy Products this law that we are talking about, insists that we give you a fair and just return for your money, otherwise we will have to pay the penalty, and as we do not relish punishment, that is just what we will do.

Yours, For Better Quality and Service.
